Official Denial

British-Nazi Peace Talks Are Refuted

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(CP)—The foreign office today issued a complete denial of a story published in the Moscow newspaper Pravda that British officials had conferred with Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, on a separate peace.

By M. S. HANDLER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press. MOSCOW, Jan. 17.—The Communist party organ Pravda exploded a bombshell in Allied diplomatic quarters today by publishing a Cairo dispatch which said "two leading British personalities" recently met German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop to discuss "terms of a separate peace with Germany."

(Authoritative sources in London said the report was "without foundation" and expressed surprise at Pravda's action in publishing it.)

The dispatch from Pravda's own correspondent said the conference was held secretly at one of the coastal cities in the Pyrenees lying along the border of Spain and France.

The report was attributed to "information in reliable Greek and Yugoslav circles" at Cairo.

"NOT WITHOUT RESULTS"

"The meeting had the object of the elucidation of terms of a separate peace with Germany," it said. "It is believed the meeting was not without results."

Pravda is one of the most responsible and serious of the Soviet newspapers. It seldom publishes mere wild rumors, and probably is one of the world's least sensational newspapers.

The dispatch was dated Jan. 12 and was published only today, indicating either a transmission delay or careful consideration of the desirability of publishing it.

The dispatch from Pravda's own correspondent said:

"According to information in reliable Greek and Yugoslav circles, two leading British personalities recently conferred secretly with Ribbentrop at one of the coastal cities in the Pyrenees."

"The meeting had the object of the elucidation of terms of a separate peace with Germany. It is believed the meeting was not without results."

U.K. Train Wreck Takes Nine Lives
LONDON, Jan. 17.—(CP)—A toll of nine dead and 30 injured, including three American airmen killed and nine other U.S. soldiers injured, was counted today in the crash of two London-bound trains in the suburban station of Ilford.

Both trains were crowded with hundreds of troops on leave, including Canadian soldiers, none of whom was hurt.

Most of the casualties were in the rear coach of a train from Yarmouth, hit by the Norwich express and catapulted into the Norwich locomotive. Three coaches of the Norwich train were telescoped and at least two coaches of the Yarmouth train were wrecked.

The ninth victim, Father George Pressanges, fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, died this morning.

Maj. Frank F. Heilgers, 51, Conservative member of parliament for Bury St. Edmunds since 1931, was among the dead. He served in the First Great War and has been on active service since the outbreak of the present trouble.

Labor-Progressive Party to Contest 3 Calgary Seats
CALGARY, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Three Labor-Progressive candidates will seek election in Calgary in the next provincial contest. They are Lionel Edwards, Y. D. Daniels and Gordon Wray, who were named at a convention of the local constituency association Sunday.

Mr. Daniels was a candidate for city council in the last civic election and Mr. Wray a candidate for school trustee.

James A. MacPherson, provincial leader, addressed a meeting in the evening at which about 200 persons were in attendance.

Heads Route

Group Captain V. H. Patriarche, A.F.C., recently appointed commanding officer of the North-West Staging Route of the R.C.A.F., the chain of strategic air bases between Edmonton and the boundary of Alaska. He succeeds Wing Commander W. J. McFarlane, as commanding officer of the staging route. The latter takes over command of the bombing and gunnery school at Jarvis.

Russians Open New Offensive Toward Baltic

By HENRY SHAPIRO

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press. MOSCOW, Jan. 17.—A new Red army offensive which had knocked a 10-mile gap in the German lines less than 70 miles east of Latvia was reported developing today with a speed and scope presaging a full-scale push toward the Baltic sea.

Smashing through the densely forested lake area north of Novosokol-Niki, Soviet mobile and armored forces cut the trunk railway south from Leningrad and now were driving westward toward the Leningrad-Polotsk line, one of the two last longitudinal supply arteries below the old capital.

(A German communiqué reported that the Russians were attacking "with increasing fierceness" north of Lake Ilmen and in the area of Oranienbaum, 19 miles west of Leningrad on the Gulf of Finland. Fresh Soviet formations were thrown into battle north and northwest of Nevel, it said, while to the south, the Red Army mounted an offensive west of Rechitsa in lower White Russia, where "several penetrations were sealed off.")

CO-ORDINATED DRIVES
The new Russian drive north of Novosokolinki was co-ordinated with Gen. Ivan G. Bagramian's campaign on the broad front from Vitebsk to Novosokol-Niki. It was designed to win important German communication lines and eventually clear the way for a synchronized push toward the Baltic.

A German dispatch said had pressed German forces above Novosokol-Niki were fleeing under Russian attack.

Page Suggests Change in Name Independent Party At Calgary Convention

By WILLIAM MURPHY
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Reporter

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—With delegates from every constituency in Alberta present, the convention of the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta opened here Monday to elect a leader, draft organization plans and adopt its platform.

J. Percy Page, M.L.A. for Edmonton and chairman of the provisional committee, was elected chairman of the convention with Mayor Andrew Davison of Calgary as vice-chairman. At the noon adjournment, 258 delegates had registered and officials were confident that the 300 mark would be reached before the convention's conclusion.

"If anyone in this hall has the idea that Social Credit is dying out, just forget it," warned Mr. Page in his presidential report. "It will be more powerful than the C.C.F. in the next election," he added.

"Though the Independents adopted a platform over two years ago, it had virtually been forgotten. It was imperative that the platform selected today be made unmistakably clear. Had a leader been chosen earlier the party might not have lost in the Edmonton and Red Deer by-elections," Mr. Page said.

In his opening remarks Mr. Page suggested that consideration should be given to changing the name of the organization and advanced the name "United Citizens of Alberta." This question will be discussed later in the convention.

SETUP OF COUNCIL
Under the setup the council of the party will consist of 114 members, organized on the basis of two representatives from each rural provincial constituency, and 10 from each of the cities of Calgary and Edmonton, together with the

Price Put on Head of City Man's Brother Serving as Liaison Officer With Yugoslavs

By JOHN CHESTER

CAIRO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Germans have placed a price on the head of a tall, white-haired middle-aged Canadian officer, Maj. William Jones of Toronto, and brother of Douglas Jones of Edmonton, who holds the record for length of service as liaison officer with Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), leader of the Yugoslav Partisans.

The fact the Nazis fear and hate him and mention him frequently in broadcasts is causing Jones little or no concern. Friends say he easily passes the top requirement for all British liaison officers with Tito—intelligent fortitude.

Jones has been with Tito's forces since April, 1942, when he dropped by parachute into the guerrilla mountain hide-out. He has seen considerable fighting although he does not take a combat role himself. His principal job is getting supplies and co-ordinating military operations.

DOUG JONES (Tells of Brother)
Jones is more than 50 years old but jokingly tells friends he is 28. He tried to join the Canadian army at the outbreak of war but was rejected because he had lost one eye. As a seaman he worked his way to England, volunteered again and worked up from the ranks to a commission.

Macdonald Says:

Canada Gets 2 U.K. Destroyers With Cruisers

By KENNETH R. HOOD

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press. OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—Arrangements have now been completed for the transfer from the Royal Navy to the Royal Canadian Navy of two newly-constructed cruisers and two fleet destroyers, Navy Minister Angus L. Macdonald announced here today.

Transfer of the four ships was first discussed during the Quebec conference between Royal Navy officials and Canadian naval officers it was disclosed.

In addition to these four ships, the navy minister last Friday said that two aircraft carrier escort ships would shortly be in service with the Canadian navy, manned by Canadians, although technically they will remain units of the Royal Navy.

REVERSE MUTUAL AID

The transfer of the cruisers and destroyers, according to today's announcement, may be regarded as "reverse mutual aid," it was said.

They will come under Canada's exclusive control in the same way that large numbers of fighting ships, notably corvettes, mine sweepers and frigates built in Canada, have been transferred to the United Kingdom and are now units of the Royal Navy.

In both cases, the ships are made available, without regard to "financial considerations," to the service where it is believed they can contribute "most effectively to the common war effort of the United Nations," said the minister.

"Super-Fortress"

At Next Session

Eight Private Bills Will Go To Legislature

At least eight private bills will come before the next session of the Legislature for consideration, it was learned Monday. Besides a bill asking ratification for charter amendments for Edmonton city, the city of Wetaskiwin, the town of Camrose, and five corporations will submit private bills for legislative approval. More may be submitted before the "cut-off" date, Jan. 31.

The City of Wetaskiwin will ask for a change in its municipal government system to allow for the appointment of two city commissioners; permission to license bicycles; for authorization to pay a mayor's salary of $800 a year and councillors' salaries at the rate of $5 a meeting; for authorization of a pension scheme for city employees; and approval of provisions respecting repayment to the city of assistance rendered residents for relief or medical care.

APPLY FOR ACT

The Society of Industrial Accountants of Alberta has given notice it will apply for an Act of Incorporation, and other applications for incorporation will be made on behalf of The Brothers of the Christian Schools of Alberta; the Alberta and British Columbia District of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri and Ohio; and for the incorporation of a club in the cities of Edmonton and Calgary, to be known as the Allied Club.

Harry Lingas, Theodore Dennis, William Skokals, Chris Johnson and D. Proebis are applicants for the club incorporation.

Mount Royal College, Calgary, will apply for permission to carry on first year university work, and will ask for status of a junior college. The Town of Camrose will request approval of a tax exemption by-law.

Say New Air Force Built Up in Russia

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(CP)—The Daily Express today quoted the Nazi-controlled radio as saying that a new strategic bombing force is being built up in Russia, perhaps made up of British and American heavy bombers as well as Russian planes, for attacks on eastern Germany beyond the range of British-based aircraft.

Churchill Reaches Agreement With French on Co-Operation

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

ALGIERS, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, healthy, robust and active in Allied war councils again, has reached agreement with Gen. Charles de Gaulle on British-French National Committee co-operation toward a common victory in a conference at Marrakech, French Morocco, it was announced yesterday.

The prime minister and the general agreed upon some French participation in new assaults upon Europe and the necessity for a close relationship between France and Britain. It was reported, however, that Mr. Churchill reserved for the allied military command the decision of supplying arms — how much and to whom — to anti-Nazi within France.

The two leaders were said to have conferred in a "most cordial atmosphere" on such questions as the arming of de Gaulle's underground followers in France and the government of territories ultimately to be liberated by Allied armies in France.

A French announcement said yesterday that Mr. Churchill had reviewed the entire question of

Wilson Hints

At New Blow On Continent

By DONALD G. COE

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

ALGIERS, Jan. 17.—Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied supreme commander in the Mediterranean, said today that the European war can be won in 1944 and hinted that his armies may strike into Southern France when Allied armies based in the United Kingdom invade the continent.

"We are reaching the culminating, decisive period of the war," Wilson said. "I have no doubt that he (the German) is already feeling strain on the eastern front. Our objective is to tighten that strain and intensify it, so that when the weakest link snaps the collapse of the whole fabric will be rapid and thorough."

Intimating that Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary may be the "weakest link," Wilson said: "The Germans have three very uneasy Allies in southeast and central Europe. They see their fate and they would willingly go into liquidation if they saw a chance to do so."

CONFIDENCE IN ARMIES

"We've got to bear that in mind in our strategy during the coming year."

In his first press conference since assuming his new command, Wilson expressed confidence in the ability of the Allied armies to strike a mortal blow against Germany this year, although he cautioned that the war would not be over until the end of the year.

Russia Rejects Poland's Plans For Negotiation

By JOHN A. PARRIS

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Russia today bluntly rejected the Polish exile government's proposal they negotiate a new common border and hinted that only the establishment of a new Polish government can bring solution of the crisis.

The Russian reply took British quarters by surprise and a Polish spokesman, recalling that the exile government had suggested the two western allies as mediators, said it was "a slap in the face, not only to Poland, but to America and Britain."

"The statement does not seem to indicate much understanding between the 'big three' at Tehran," the Polish spokesman said. "It indicates, rather, the Russians want to produce a Polish government of their own. The statement leaves the Polish government without a course of action."

SOVIET SUGGESTION

Russia on Jan. 5 suggested the Curzon line of 1919 as its western frontier and the exile government replied last Friday with an announcement that it was asking Britain and the United States to arrange for Soviet-Polish discussions, with British and American mediation.

City Devastated

Estimate 1,600 Dead
In Argentina 'Quakes

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A survivor of the earthquake which wiped out the Andean city of San Juan during the week-end, killing and injuring thousands, said today the tremor struck one mighty blow, "cutting the city at the roots as if by a scythe."

The survivor, Moses Rudman, said the quake plunged the city of 30,000 into darkness. Hundreds of survivors huddled in the city square and open spaces, he added, while others sought to extricate the dying and the injured whose screams were heard in the dark.

Troops and other rescue workers were digging additional bodies from the ruins of the dead city today as the nation mobilized aid for the survivors of Argentina's worst earthquake in 83 years. By official count 500 bodies have been recovered so far, but estimates on the total number of dead mounted to between 1,400 and 1,600.

CALLS CABINET MEETING

(President Gen. Pedro Ramirez of Argentina has called an emergency cabinet meeting today to consider additional measures for relief and reconstruction of the city, the Buenos Aires radio said in a broadcast heard by U.S. government monitors. Ramirez will lead a party of officials to make a personal inspection of the city, the broadcast added.)

Authorities said that 90 per cent of the buildings in San Juan, which was jolted by four shocks Saturday night and Sunday morning, were destroyed and none of those left standing was habitable. The quake crumbled modern, steel-reinforced structures, such as the city hall and other government buildings, as well as the twin-spired 18th century cathedral and other older buildings.

The injured—one estimate placed the number as high as 16,000—were taken to hospitals of Mendoza, 75 miles south of San Juan, and authorities ordered school buildings converted into temporary hospitals. Physicians and nurses worked without rest amid the debris of the stricken city, administering to the injured. Additional doctors and nurses, and blood plasma, medicine, food and clothing, were being rushed by train, plane and truck.

TRAPPED IN HOMES

Thousands were trapped in their homes and additional hundreds were caught in cinemas and restaurants. An undetermined number were reported killed and injured while attending a service in the cathedral facing the main square in the heart of the city.

The town, which was founded by Spaniards in 1562, suffered a severe earthquake in 1820 and lesser ones in 1936 and last March.

sitting members of the legislature who are prepared to co-operate and the defeated candidates of bodies presently co-operating at the last general or byelection.

The executive committee of the party will consist of the provincial chairman and fourteen other members of the council, seven of whom shall be selected from Northern Alberta and seven from Southern Alberta.

The provincial constituencies of Rocky Mountain House, Red Deer, Stettin, Acadia-Coronation and all constituencies south thereof shall comprise Southern Alberta, and the remaining constituencies shall be Northern Alberta.

Sub-committees will be named for the northern and southern sections of the province. These committees will be comprised of the executive members elected and will perform such duties as may be delegated by the full executive. Vacancies on the executive committee will be filled by a vote of that committee.

The incoming committee will be charged with the duties of dealing with finance policy and organization.

Representatives for northern Alberta nominated to the executive committee are: W. Kelly Porter, Edmonton; George MacLachlan, M.L.A., Clyde; Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A., Edmonton; James Bentley, Horsefalls; Percy Herring, Edmonton; W. N. Chant, Camrose, and E. J. Martin, M.L.A., Fairview.

The southern representatives nominated were: R. M. Edmondson, Calgary; E. Bennion, Picture Butte; M. H. Waldron, Okotoks; J. C. Mahaffy, K.C., M.L.A., Calgary; J. H. Walker, M.L.A., Raymond; J. J. Bowen, M.L.A., Calgary, and Mayor A. Davison, Calgary.

Mr. Page was re-nominated for the presidency of the party, and will likely be re-elected when the vote is taken on officers and committees later in the meeting.

The first plank in the party's platform passed by the convention pledged support and co-operation to the Dominion government and to provincial governments in the prosecution of the war to a successful conclusion.

Approval was given to the plank dealing with youth and child welfare.

CHILD WELFARE

Under this heading the party pledged the creation of a special department of government under the direction of a cabinet minister of youth and child welfare who would be charged with the co-ordination of all government and community activities in the development and guidance of youth. He would formulate and carry into effect all advisable program for youth development and child welfare.

In particular this department would seek the building up of mothers' health education and other health programs to the end that every child in the province would receive adequate nutritional diet and prompt and adequate medical care.

The provision of adequate children's hospitals for the treatment of every sick or crippled child, and in which the finest medical, surgical and nursing care would be given was adopted as a party plank.

Other sections of the platform endorsed under the heading of youth and child welfare included: increases in mothers' allowances, the extension of these allowances to permanently deserted wives, the maintenance of child welfare offices throughout the province adequately staffed, and generously financed to permit effective work to be carried on.

ACTIVE SUPPORT

The party also pledged active support and encouragement to boys' and girls' clubs in both rural and urban areas, the provision through schools and other organizations for complete and advanced physical training for all children and adolescents, and also to provide facilities for brilliant students to complete their education.

Co-operation with the Dominion government in the successful rehabilitation of persons serving in the armed forces and engaged in war industry was also pledged.

Under education, the party pledged a decrease in the cost of education to parents through the reduction or elimination of fees, and the cost of books and equipment.

A standard of salary that would attract capable and promising young people to the teaching profession was pledged, and also that government must be prepared to assume a much greater share of the cost of education, thus lifting a part of the burden of taxation from land.

The party pledged itself to the elimination of the inequalities of educational opportunities for the rural child by providing extended facilities to rural areas.

Greater assistance will be sought from the Dominion government towards the cost of education, and it is suggested in the party's platform that this assistance might be rendered through a post-war building plan under which the Dominion would erect educational institutions which might be turned over to the provinces; that the field of national scholarships might be extended; and the grants increased to enable brilliant students to pursue courses in education to the limit of their ability, rather than the extent of their material resources.

The party pledged itself to co-operate with the Dominion government in the continuance of education of those in the armed forces under Federal assistance, and will seek from the Dominion a further extension of educational research.

greater grants for technical and youth training, and the adoption of a national movement to acquaint the public in all parts of Canada with our position and responsibilities in the British Commonwealth of Nations and the world community.

By WILLIAM MURPHY

Edmonton Bulletin Staff Reporter—
CALGARY, Jan. 17.—Pre-convention indications are that David H. Elton, K.C., nine times mayor of Lethbridge, will be the successful candidate for the leadership of the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta in a straight fight with James H. Walker, M.L.A., for the Warner constituency.

Delegates pouring into the city for today's convention meeting seem to be very evenly divided on the question of leadership with Mr. Elton holding a slight edge. Many of the delegates know little of either of the candidates and will not make up their minds until they have heard the candidates make their nomination speeches.

However, there is a quiet but systematic lobby being carried out in favor of Elton and his stock has increased considerably during Sunday and early Monday morning. He will enter the convention hall a slight favorite and is likely to gain further support when delegates have heard him speak.

ESTIMATED 250 ATTEND

Registration opened at 9 a.m. and continued briskly throughout the morning with a battery of clerks registering the delegates. By 9:30 more than 200 delegates had been registered with the southern constituencies sending the maximum number of delegates from each riding.

Many of the constituencies from central Alberta also sent full quotas but northern constituencies sent only one or two delegates. It is estimated that 250 delegates will register.

Opening the convention, J. Percy Page, M.L.A., for Edmonton, chairman of the association, reviewed the work done in recent years by the party and outlined some of the planks in the platform to be submitted to the convention.

He charged that the present Social Credit government, although it took office under more favorable conditions than did its predecessor, has failed to implement its promises and it would appear that its members are now convinced that there is not the slightest chance of these promises being realized.

SEES PARTY SUCCESS

He said that during the past years the Independent Party had built up a powerful fighting force within the legislature and expanded the opinion that the Independents, with the people prepared to subordinate their party affiliations to a united provincial effort, will be successful in the forthcoming election and will give to Alberta the most efficient type of government.

A lengthy platform is being submitted to the convention and will come up for discussion late in the morning session and throughout the afternoon.

It deals with social service, parity prices and floor prices for agricultural products, education, taxation, labor relations, soldier re-establishment, social security and post-war planning, health and housing.

Under the heading labor relations it is proposed that in conjunction with the various provinces there should be established a definite and uniform Dominion labor policy under which both employer and employees should have the right to select their own form of bargaining without any interference from any governmental authority.

It is pledged also that there should be no discrimination directed against any workman because of membership in a legitimate trade union.

Also pledged is the principle that in the appointment of policy forming commissions both employers and employees should have equal representation.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Under the heading of Social Security it will be recommended that the convention adopt a resolution sponsoring the adoption of a social security plan for Canada similar to the Beveridge or the Marsh reports with provincial co-operation therein. It is recommended also that there should be a re-examination of the Rowell-Sirois report in the light of conditions as they will exist in the post-war period.

Platform planks dealing with health include the provision of a system of medical service directed toward the achievement of positive health or the prevention of disease and the relief of sickness, to make available to every citizen all necessary medical services, both general and specialist, and both domiciliary and institutional.

Churchill Holds Conference With
Gen. de Gaulle

French co-operation with the French leader during a long conference last Wednesday in French Morocco.

It was the first announcement of Mr. Churchill's whereabouts since the disclosure exactly a month ago that he had been stricken with pneumonia somewhere in 'the Middle East.'

REVIEW RELATIONS

"The principal phases of Franco-British relations since the beginning of the war and particularly the dramatic origins of collaboration between the prime minister and de Gaulle were recalled," the French announcement said.

"The conversation was pursued in the most cordial atmosphere."

Pending matters which the two men had an opportunity to discuss were plans for the co-ordination of the leadership of French troops, establishment of a provisional French government after the invasion, and the pending treason trials of some former French leaders on whose behalf the British and United States governments are known to have made "informal inquiries."

Gen. de Gaulle is reported to have discussed the urgency of sending munitions to French patriots to be used in easing the invasion through the sabotage of Nazi communications and attacks on enemy personnel.

NO COMMITMENTS

Mr. Churchill is reported to have replied that he would investigate the matter but made no definite assurances or commitments.

Mr. Churchill and Gen. de Gaulle began their conferences after a luncheon attended by Mrs. Churchill and their daughter Sarah, who have been with him during his recuperation at Marrakech, Lord Beaverbrook and Alfred Duff Cooper, and his wife, Lady Diana. Duff Cooper and Lady Diana accompanied Gen. de Gaulle from Algiers. Lord Beaverbrook is lord privy seal and Duff Cooper is the British representative to the French National Committee.

Gen. de Gaulle was accompanied by Gaston Palowski, his chief political adviser, who sat in the conference along with Lord Beaverbrook and Duff Cooper.

The villa in which the Churchills have been staying is one of the most famous in Africa. The prime minister and President Roosevelt stayed there one day after the close of the Casablanca conference. It was built by a United States banking family and has been loaned to the Churchills during their stay.

TROOPS REVIEWED

De Gaulle invited Mr. Churchill to review French troops trained and equipped for the forthcoming battles of Europe.

Following the parade, de Gaulle addressed the wildly-cheering people briefly.

"In this meeting held in the presence of all and in front of the French forces in Morocco we see new proof of our alliance on the eve of the common supreme efforts for the same cause," he said.

Winnipeg Skater

Sets New Record

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Betty Mitchell, 15-year-old Winnipeg speed skating star, won individual honors at the annual Thousand Lakes meet here yesterday. Miss Mitchell bettered the international junior record for the 220-yard dash covering the distance in 21.2 seconds. The former mark of 21.5 was set by Audrey Naas of Minneapolis, at Lacrosse, Wis., in 1940.

Eileen Whalley of Winnipeg won the 220 and 880 to lead the women's senior division with 60 points.

Establishment of a provincial housing commission to work in harmony with the Dominion authorities in devising plans for the post-war construction of homes, both in urban and rural areas, and the provision of money at a reasonable rate of interest should be provided to all who desire to take advantage of plans formulated, are planks under the general heading of housing.

Refunding of the provincial debt at a substantial reduction in interest rates and with proper provision for its orderly retirement is another plank of the platform.

fire, devastating every village in their path.

"The straw-thatched roofs of peasants' huts in this area are blazing fiercely, lashing the Russian soldiers into a wild fury as they rush forward heedless of all dangers," Pravda reported.

The Germans stepped up their counter-attacks at the southwestern corner of the Ukrainian front, throwing thousands of men and hundreds of tanks into a frantic attempt to seal off Soviet spearheads that threatened to sever the Odessa-Warsaw escape railroad and smash into Rumania.

ADMIT BUG CROSSED

(The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported from Berlin that the Germans admitted Soviet vanguards had crossed the Bug river near Vinnitsa, but claimed the force had been encircled and was "apparently meeting defeat." The Bug river at this point was 15 to 30 miles from the Odessa-Warsaw railroad and some 60 miles from the Bessarabian frontier.)

(Col. Ernst Von Hammer, in a Berlin radio commentary, acknowledged that the Russians had achieved "initial successes" in at least 14 sectors along the twisting 2,000-mile front from Leningrad to the Crimea.)

overseas. In July of last year he landed in Sicily and just one month later to the day—on Aug. 3—he was wounded. He was with an advance party ahead of the famous mule trains of the Canadians which have been written about so often. A sniper he was concealed behind rocks when his foot slipped.

Resting his hand on top of the rocks, Stiles bent down to see what had caused him to slip. An explosive bullet struck his left hand in which he was holding his rifle, ripped off half of the hand and smashed the gun.

He has little to say about the fighting except that the Germans, unable to reach the Canadians with mortar fire, used a type of explosive shell about the size of those used in a 50 calibre anti-tank rifle and it was one of these which struck him. Ordinarily the Germans used them for firing on aircraft.

IN HOSPITAL

After he was wounded Stiles went to hospitals in Malta, Tunis and Algiers and because of the extent of his wound it was found necessary to amputate his hand and three inches of his arm above the wrist.

He arrived back in Canada late in November and spent Christmas at his home. Soon he will be posted to the University hospital at Edmonton for further treatment.

The Canadian Volunteer Service Medal will not be struck until after the war but when it is it will be circular in form, and will be of silver.

The first day that the new service ribbon could be worn was Saturday.

minister of agriculture, the peer crossed Canada by airplane, and is travelling east by rail. He plans to visit all Dominion experimental farms in the country.

In Edmonton, Earl De La Warr will address a private meeting of Edmonton branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, at the Macdonald hotel at 8 p.m. Monday. Tuesday noon, he will be speaker at a joint luncheon meeting of the Men's Canadian Club and the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce. At this second meeting, the part British agriculture has played in the war effort, and future agricultural policy, will be among topics discussed.

IMPORTANT POSTS

Lord De La Warr, who has held many important posts in the British government, was president of the board of education in the Old Country from 1938 to 1940. He is the ninth Earl De La Warr, and is also Viscount Cantelupe and Baron Auchmuty. His full name is Herbert Edward Dundonald Brassey Saville.

Canadian bacon is highly regarded by the British people, the visiting Earl said, in reply to a question. "In England, we have dropped quality and are going into big, weights for hogs. That is war policy, as large hogs thrive best on food obtainable for them."

The British meat ration will provide one or two good meals a week, Lord De La Warr said, adding that Britons are eating very well, although luxuries are "out," and meals are sometimes monotonous.

Asked what he thought of the Canadian meat ration, he replied, "I hesitate to think what my weight and shape will be when I get back home."

"I have been particularly impressed by the work being done in cattle breeding, and the type of stock on ordinary holdings," Lord De La Warr said in commenting on his Canadian visit. "We are producing wonderful stock at home, but we will have to look to our laurels."

May Hit France

Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean, who hinted today that his armies may strike into Southern France in conjunction with the invasion of Western Europe.

tioned that the Germans' defeat still may be some time away.

Asked to comment on General Eisenhower's statement that the war in Europe will be won in 1944, Wilson said:

"Given luck, we will win it, but whether we will finish it in 1944 is another thing. It is like a boxer who can win, but in order to finish the fighting depends on whether his opponent chucks in the towel."

Then, discussing the possibility of co-ordinated attacks against the continent from Britain and the Mediterranean, he added:

"I do not rule out the possibility of operations against southern France."

Wilson said he was "very optimistic" about the Allied chances of capturing Rome this spring, adding that occupation of the Italian capital is the prime objective of this campaign.

The tall, heavy-set general, known throughout the British army as "Jumbo," recalled that he had had four and one-half years of "ups and downs" in the desert campaigns and the fighting in Greece and the Aegean.

"It is different now," he said. "We have the material in order to wage war. If we had had (in the early campaigns) a fraction of what we now have the story might have been different."

Wilson said he intended to retain the Allied staff organization built up in the Mediterranean.

He indicated that no new operations are in progress in the Balkans, where, he said, bad weather has made most of the mountainous terrain impassable.

centres at Atina and Formia on the Allied 5th Army front and Arielli on the British 8th Army's Adriatic sector.

Allied fighter bombers also struck across the Adriatic at enemy shipping, hitting two merchant vessels off the Dalmatian coast.

Eighteen German planes were shot down in the day's operations at a cost of five Allied aircraft.

In the mountains of central Italy, American and French units of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army smashed deep into the German line guarding Cassino and the Liri valley invasion road to Rome.

Front reports indicated that the Fifth Army's struggle to break open the Nazis' mountain line had reached its climax.

American infantry swept down the northern slopes of captured Mount Trocchio and drove on two miles to the east bank of the narrow Rapido River, directly opposite Cassino.

FRENCH ADVANCE

On the American right flank, French Polaris and savage Moroccan troops advanced a mile through the mountains north of Cassino to within 1,000 yards of the enemy strong point at San Elia.

The advance carried General Alphonse Juin's mountain troops to within three miles of Cassino and little more than a mile from the vital Atina-Cassino highway over which the Germans had been moving supplies and reinforcements to their forward units astride the Rome road.

American siege guns were within easy range of the main enemy defences inside Cassino, and a frontal assault on the town, coupled with a flanking attack by Juin's forces, appeared imminent.

There was no new report of action on the Eighth Army front or of the progress of British units on the left wing of the Fifth Army offensive.

If Canadians go ahead at the rate I have observed."

He said he has been greatly impressed by work done on Canadian experimental farms, and believes Canadian livestock breeders are operating on a well-thought-out scientific basis.

Monday morning Lord De La Warr was met by Robert M. Putnam, director of extension, provincial department of agriculture. Later, he conferred with Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, and chairman of the Research Council of Alberta.

Poland's Plans

participation, of "all outstanding questions" between the two countries.

The Russian statement, distributed early today by the official Tass agency, said the Polish declaration "completely avoided and ignored" the question of the Curzon line and therefore "it cannot be considered otherwise than a rejection of the Curzon line." Establishment of the Curzon line as a post-war frontier would result in Russia giving up more than 7,000 of the 77,700 square miles occupied by the Red army in September, 1939.

"As to the proposal of the Polish government on the opening of official negotiations between it and the Soviet government, the Soviet government believes this proposal was intended to mislead public opinion," the Russian statement said.

REASON FOR ACTION

"It is not difficult to understand that the Soviet government cannot enter into official negotiations with a government with which diplomatic relations are interrupted owing to the fault of the Polish government because of its active participation in the hostile anti-Soviet slanderous campaign of 'Katyn murders' launched by the German invaders."

"In the opinion of Soviet circles, the above circumstances demonstrate once more that the present Polish government does not wish to establish good, neighborly relations with the Soviet Union."

Russia severed relations with the Polish exile government last April after the Poles asked the International Red Cross to investigate a German propaganda claim that a mass grave of Polish officers slain by the Russians had been discovered at Katyn, near Smolensk.

DENIED CHARGE

Russia denied the charge and asserted that the Polish officers had been slain by the Germans. A Moscow broadcast yesterday said a Soviet commission that has been investigating the murders will announce its findings soon.

The Soviet statement's reference to the Katyn incident, along with its charge that the exile government was guilty of bad faith and a lack of interest in restoring diplomatic relations, was interpreted here generally as an indication that Russia will have no dealings with the present cabinet ministers.

This might mean that, barring unforeseen circumstances, only the establishment of a completely new Polish government in London could resolve the most serious crisis disrupting unity among the United Nations.

A number of Polish refugees in Russia have formed the Union of Polish Patriots and it was possible that leaders of this group might attempt to set up a rival Polish government. The union has been outspoken in its criticism of the London regime.

British surprise at the tone of the Soviet statement could be measured by the fact that an authoritative British spokesman on Saturday had welcomed the Polish declaration as "encouraging" and some London newspapers had called it "a masterpiece of diplomacy."

Before releasing the declaration, Polish authorities had numerous conferences with British Foreign secretary Anthony Eden.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(BUP)—U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today that the United States had offered to help bring about a resumption of diplomatic relations between Poland and the Soviet Union, but to date no reply has been received from Moscow.

Independents Urge Program Of Agricultural Reforms To Better Alberta Farmers

By WILLIAM MURPHY
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Reporter

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—An agricultural program designed to improve the economic and social life of the farmers of Alberta will be submitted to the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta's convention which opened here today.

One Authority For Taxation Is Proposed

By WILLIAM MURPHY

Edmonton Bulletin Staff Reporter
CALGARY, Jan. 17.—The proposal that there should be one taxing authority only for the Dominion and provinces, with equitable distribution of tax receipts on a basis to be mutually agreed upon, is like a runaway into stern opposition from delegates holding strong views on provincial rights when it is introduced at the Independents' Citizens' Association of Alberta's convention here Monday.

The principle of "One taxing authority" will be submitted under the taxation plank of the party's platform. It will be proposed that the present policy of one taxing authority for income taxes and succession duties be extended to abolish duplication of taxes and to effect savings in reduction of collection costs.

RELIEVE CHARGES

Those favoring the establishment of one taxing authority submit its adoption would result in the entire costs of such social services as health, hospitals, child welfare, old-age and blind pensions, mothers' allowances, unemployment and indigent relief would be made the responsibility of the senior governments, thus relieving municipalities of those heavy charges, which charges should not be a levy against real property as is now the case.

Under the heading "taxation" the party will affirm its belief in the continuance of private enterprise and personal initiative in business, and will pledge a gradual reduction in taxation from wartime levels through utmost economy in governmental spending to permit the individual taxpayer as well as companies to develop their holdings and investments along normal lines.

The convention will be asked to favor the abolition of the provincial social services tax, a direct levy on land and improvements. This tax is termed in the resolution an invasion of the taxation rights of municipalities which should not be tolerated.

El Alamein Line Broken by Nazis, Officer Discloses

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Maj. Peter W. Rainin, an officer of the British 8th Army, said Saturday that Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa Corps broke through the El Alamein line on a seven mile front on July 3, 1942, and rolled "almost to the gates of Alexandria" before the British stopped him.

Maj. Rainin, chief engineer in charge of the water supply for the Eighth Army in North Africa, said in an address:

"On July 3, Rommel attacked the El Alamein line and, something that has never yet been published, he broke through it on a seven-mile front. Through this gap, panzer divisions roared on toward Alexandria, only 50 miles away across the open desert. Rommel was stopped by a few tanks and some very tired men almost at the gates of Alexandria on July 4."

Plan Conference On Production In Taber Field

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—(CP)—A solution of the problem of utilizing a potential production of more than 1,000 barrels of oil per day from the Taber field is expected to result from a conference with Federal Oil Controller G. R. Cottrell at Toronto this week.

John Galloway, president of Dominion Oil Co., left Calgary over the week-end to attend the conference slated to commence Wednesday. Representatives of Imperial Oil and other refinery interests are also scheduled to attend.

Five wells have been brought into production by Dominion Oil Company and Nassau Explorations Ltd., in a joint program for development of the Taber field, the latest being Taber-Province No. 11-19B which gives indications of producing more than 400 barrels per day.

Retired Barrister Fatally Injured

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Arthur Gordon Smith, 78, retired barrister and solicitor, died Saturday night in hospital of injuries suffered when hit by an automobile Friday. It was the fourth fatal accident in Vancouver this year. Mr. Smith was a veteran of the Riel rebellion. He played football for the University of Toronto.

It will include a plank favoring parity prices for farm products, and reasonable floor prices, particularly in the transition period from war to peace time economy.

The convention, it is expected, will go on record favoring the principle that freedom in trade relations should be accepted as a necessity of post-war reconstruction, and the Dominion government will be asked to take definite steps in promoting the adoption of such an international policy.

RETAIN MARKETS

The Dominion government, pending the adoption of this free trade policy, will be asked to seek as far as possible the retention and expansion of existing markets for Canadian cattle, bacon, cheese and other farm products.

The Dominion government also will be asked to review the whole field of national marketing legislation, and in the provincial field a survey will be made of all legislation affecting co-operative organization and co-operative marketing with a view to bringing this legislation more in harmony with present co-operative activities.

A plank calling for adequate research service to further the use of agricultural products; to expand the possibilities of farm production, and to seek new methods of processing and distribution of farm products also will come before the convention.

STATISTICAL SERVICE

Under this plank it is intended to provide for a statistical service to be made available to producers, particularly in respect to available markets requirements for all farm products.

Another plank in the agricultural program of the party will deal with land settlement and utilization. Under this heading it is proposed that land settlement should be preceded by a soil survey, and that marginal lands should be withheld from crop production and set aside for reforestation, pastures and other suitable uses.

It is proposed also that new areas be progressively settled so as to prohibit, as far as possible, isolation from schools, roads and other services.

The plank dealing with farm credits will ask for the establishment of a central mortgage bank for the rewriting of outstanding mortgages on farm lands, and that a survey of facilities for short term and intermediate credit should be made with a view to working with the Dominion government in making adequate provision for such credit as reasonable rates of interest, and that particular encouragement should be given to the promotion of credit unions.

EXTEND SERVICES

It will be proposed also that the services available through the Canadian Farm Loans Act be extended by liberalizing the conditions under which loans are made, and by giving encouragement to make loans more freely. In particular the Canadian Farm Loan Act should be made available to young farmers in becoming established on farms.

The convention will be asked to endorse the principle that any reconstruction policy in Canada should include as part of such plans the provision of facilities for farm home improvements and building repairs.

Approval will be asked also for the immediate study of rural electrification for as large a part of the province as possible and that the Dominion government be asked to undertake the necessary construction work for such rural electrification as a part of its post-war reconstruction plans.

Plan Air Survey Of Foothills Belt

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—(CP)—A complete aerial photograph survey of the Alberta foothills belt will be undertaken by a group of major oil companies this summer to obtain data for locating future oil or gas wells, it was announced this week-end.

Imperial Oil Ltd., and Shell Oil of Canada are taking a major part in arrangements for the survey to be made from airplanes by special cameras. The survey, according to a report in the Oil Bulletin, a Calgary publication, will extend from the Montana border to the British Columbia boundary south of Pouce Coupe. It will cover approximately 15,000 square miles and cost in the neighborhood of $75,000.

The correlated aerial photographs will give a complete picture of the topography of the area and prove of great value in locating potential oil and gas structures. It will be the first time that the entire foothills belt has been photographed for this purpose.

Auto Containing Bodies of Three Found at Coast

VICTORIA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—An automobile holding three bodies was pulled from Victoria harbor waters Saturday, leaving only one man missing of five who disappeared New Year's Day.

The bodies recovered Saturday were identified as those of Frank Masters, Joseph Marino and Dan Bethune. The body of Frank Brundridge was found a week ago. Still missing is Robert Duncan, owner of the car. All were shipyard workers here.

Masters, Marino and Bethune all were in the back seat. It is believed the bodies of Duncan and Brundridge floated from the front seat. All five had been seen together New Year's Day.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Two young midshipmen of the Royal Canadian Navy—A. M. Cupples of Victoria and J. H. Young, Vancouver—were in at the death of the German battleship Scharnhorst.

Both are serving in H.M.S. Jamaica, which formed part of the covering force for the convoy attacked by Scharnhorst off the North Cape. After the enemy ship had been hit by torpedoes and battered by the guns of H.M.S. Duke of York, Jamaica was sent in to finish her off with torpedoes.

The R.C.N. said last night that Young, 21, enlisted at Vancouver in 1941, going overseas immediately for training with the Royal Navy.

Cupples, also 21, was born in Edmonton, and went overseas for training after joining the navy in 1941.

Canada Is Said Far Along Road To Socialism

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, leader of the Canadian Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Party, said Saturday Canada is far along the road to Socialism.

In a press interview before a luncheon given here in his honor by the League for Industrial Democracy, Mr. Coldwell said that although the C.C.F. now has only 11 of the 245 seats in the House of Commons at Ottawa, a recent Gallup poll gave it the largest percentage of popular following.

SOCIALIST TREND

He attributed the trend toward Socialism in Canada to close association with the British Commonwealth where, he said, "the trend is in that direction"; to immigration of many British trade unionists; the depression; success of several public-ownership ventures already taken by the Canadian government; and success of co-operative effort in war economy.

The C.C.F., Coldwell said, stands for "establishment by democratic means of a co-operative community in which the principal means of production and distribution will be socially owned."

He added that such a system would not interfere with business which was not likely to become a vested interest, was not exploiting labor and would fit into a well-organized national plan. He added that he believed this system was developing in all the British Commonwealth of Nations.

SAYS C.P.R. SHOULD BE UNDER PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway should be under public ownership after the war, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, told a press conference here Saturday. He later addressed a luncheon sponsored by the League for Industrial Democracy.

He said a $500,000,000 block of C.P.R. shares now is held in Great Britain by a group of private interests, and that Canada had made a loan of $700,000,000 without interest to the British government.

"Many Canadians," he said, "believe we should take the C.P.R. stock in place of repayment of the loan. That would give us a controlling interest of the C.P.R. and all its holdings, including the Canadian Pacific Steamship line. The C.C.F. would solidly support such an action."

FAVORS COMPETITION

"If that were done," he said, "I would like to see the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways, which is already government-owned, operate as separate organizations, competing against each other in order to measure results."

British Fleet Air Arm Pilots Are Trained by U.S. Navy For Future Joint Operations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Britain announced here Saturday night that one-third of all her pilots in the fleet air arm of the Royal Navy are being trained by the United States Navy in this country, primarily with a view to future joint fleet operations against Japan.

Some of the American-trained naval fliers already have had a "brush" with German forces in the North Sea, it was disclosed by Capt. Caspar John, British naval attaché for air. But most of the squadrons have only recently gone into carrier operation and their opportunities for action have been small.

John, in issuing the British announcement, declined to give any details of the North Sea fight beyond disclosing that it had occurred. He said that while the idea of eventual action in the Pacific was one of the bases for fleet air arm training in this country, the pilots and other airmen provided here are being used wherever needed.

STARTED TWO YEARS AGO

The training, started about two years ago, is done in American navy carrier planes and the fliers use such craft, furnished under lend-lease, when they go into active service. As fully-organized fighter, dive-bomber or torpedo squadrons they are also sent back to Britain on escort (small) carriers built for the British admiralty on the west and Gulf coasts of the United States.

"Only recently has the training scheme reached fruition so that we could begin sending full squadrons abroad," Capt. John told a press conference.

Capt. John also said: "The admiralty 'Aims to operate night fighters from carriers,' but the technical problems involved are extremely complicated. 'Developments in Radar,' he added, 'are very helpful in defeating night attacks.'

Britain has a carrier program similar to that of the United States in that the carriers "seem to be getting bigger and bigger all the time." (The U.S. navy now is building 45,000-ton carriers.)

In the United States they go first to the naval air station at Grosse Ile, Detroit, Mich., for three months of primary training and then to the naval air training center at Pensacola, Fla., for intermediate training, subdivided into formation, instrument and

Bulgarian Govt. Has Left Sofia

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Bulgarian government has established headquarters at Cham-Koria, a winter resort in the Rila mountains 43 miles southeast of Sofia, as a result of Allied air raids which have caused complete confusion in the capital. The Budapest correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten reported last night.

Most officials already have fled from Sofia, where 30 per cent of the buildings have been destroyed and 20 per cent damaged, the correspondent said. Dead in Monday's bombings are estimated to number 7,000, including former Premier Andra Tosehev.

advanced training. At the start of advanced training the men are commissioned.

From Pensacola, future fighter pilots go to Miami for a two-months' specialized course; dive-bomber pilots go to the naval air station at Vero Beach, Fla., and torpedo plane pilots join the naval air station at Fort Lauderdale. When they have completed this operational training the students are ready for squadron organization.

BRITISH INSTRUCTORS

The training squadron, staffed by British instructors and other personnel, is located at Lewiston, Maine, where the course is designed to teach the pilots tactical differences between the British and American systems.

There follows three months of unit training. Fighter and dive-bomber squadrons get this at the naval air station at Brunswick, Me., torpedo squadrons "work-up" at the air station at Squantum, Boston, Mass.

From these two places they are ready to return to the United Kingdom.

New Uses for Crops

Dr. Anderson, chief chemist of the research laboratory maintained by the board of grain commissioners at Winnipeg, warns that there is danger of over-emphasizing the importance of finding new ways to utilize farm crops. But he thinks a small starch industry could be started in western Canada, that flax should be processed here, and that small plants for the production of industrial alcohol should be considered.

The proposals rather over-balance the warning against expecting too large results from research work. If we are to depend on synthetic rubber in future, which seems fairly probable, the third suggestion alone could lead to the creation of an industry of very considerable value to western farmers. That the other two are also practicable and worth while can be assumed with some confidence.

It may be that the public have come to regard researchers as wizards to whom all things are possible. If so, the belief traces directly to the almost miraculous discoveries made by the scientists within the lifetime of the present generation. And the faith will persist, even though researchers themselves modestly suggest that we draw it mild.

Security Funds

Against the grim forebodings of political depressionists and constitutional blues-dispensers who insist that Canadians will head into the toughest times they ever saw when the post-war years arrive, place this additional item in the confidence column.

At the end of November the federal unemployment insurance fund stood at the impressive figure of $164,326,660. That amount had then been paid into the fund by employees, employers and the Government, as insurance money upon which the employees can draw if they find themselves out of employment at any time. And the amount is going up by additional contributions from all three participants with every month that passes.

This of course is not the only backlog of cash, nor the biggest one, that Canadian wage and salary earners have piled up for a time of need. They have bought war bonds and savings certificates to many times this amount, which they can turn into money if the need should arise. And these bonds and certificates are drawing interest, which the owners of them are pretty generally and regularly putting into more bonds and certificates.

Canadians emerged from the last war with heads full of dreams and empty pockets, not to plunge into a boom based on the idea that people could buy what they didn't need with money they didn't have. The results of the ensuing crash are still with us. Fortunately, the memories are also with us. Consequently we will pull out of the present war with solid accumulations of unemployment insurance money, war bonds and savings certificates, with which to tide over the dislocations of the readjustment period.

Opening Up

Sophia has been put under systematic air attack from the new Allied bases in southern Italy. It is the first time the capital has been regularly bombed. It may be taken also to mark the approach of operations in the Balkan theatre, previously reported commando raids into Yugoslavia and Greece having been on a small scale.

This could be the start of a softening-up process in preparation for an invasion by way of Turkey, should that country finally decide to help dissipate the threat of Axis subjugation that has loomed just across the Dardanelles ever since the Nazis occupied Greece and Bulgaria was ordered to galvanize its non-belligerent Nazism into action. Bulgarian forces, under pressure from Berlin, swarmed across the Yugoslav border and supplied part of the garrison troops Hitler needed there after the collapse of Italy.

Events have destroyed the immunity which Bulgaria has hitherto enjoyed. It can no longer deal blows without getting blows in return. From Italy it is reachable by heavy bombers, while carriers in the Aegean or the Black Sea could put most of the country under fighter attack as well.

Bulgaria is the farthest of the satellite states from Germany, therefore the least likely to get help. The events in Yugoslavia and the near-panic in Rumania are for this added reason likely to have an influence on Bulgarian morale now that the war has moved into the home area.

Berlin announces that Sophia and other Bulgarian cities are to be evacuated. This is one way of telling the Bulgarians and the world that Hitler can't spare men and equipment to effectively defend his remote satellite state.

"The Only Thing Needed"

General Eisenhower gave the Allied and neutral peoples a New Year message of hope in advance when he stated in very positive terms "We will win the European war in 1944." This is a message in which even people in enemy countries may see a promise and not a threat, if they can distinguish between their real interests and the ambitions of the scoundrels who are now herding them to slaughter.

But there is a condition attached to the forecast. General Eisenhower put it this way: "The only thing needed for us to win the European war in 1944 is for every man and woman, all the way from the front line to the remotest hamlet in our countries, to do his or her full duty."

There is no room for doubt as to who this admonition is aimed at. It was not the men who will fight under his orders the General was thinking about, but the civilians who work in munitions plants, on farms, in lumber woods, in mines, on transportation systems and in other essential occupations. There has been no slackening at the front, and there will be none. But what about the production front behind the fighting front?

Neither General Eisenhower nor the men who serve under him should have any cause for uneasiness on the question of civilian all-out effort to give them the tools and the supplies they need, of the best possible quality and in the greatest possible amount. But have they cause for misgivings when they read the news from back home in Canada or other Allied countries?

What about the strike news, and the strike-threat news, and the political log-rolling and back-biting, and the clamor to get something out of the war? These things are not helping to win the war in Europe in 1944—and the men "over there" know it.

It is just six months since the Russians started the general offensive that has all but cleared the enemy out of their country. That should destroy forever the pre-war belief of the German militarists that Russia was a vast territory from which they could carve out provinces whenever they got ready. The Russians have shown that they can take care of themselves, and are in a fair way to carry the proof to whatever is left of Berlin.

Mussolini is said to have compiled a long list of his former pals whom he hopes to dispose of in the same way that Ciano and three others were liquidated. Patriots in northern Italy are operating to the same general effect and have assassinated 75 prominent Fascists, though these were not ones whom Il Duce wanted killed. If Benito keeps his firing squads busy finishing off estranged friends while the patriots continue to eliminate his remaining henchmen, the Allies will have a considerably easier time after a while exterminating the gang.

Summary of Broadcast Delivered Over CFRN Jan. 15

By HAROLD L. WEIR

There is no use trying to dodge the fact that the present international situation, so far as it pertains to the relationships within the United Nations, is full of powerfully explosive factors. Indeed, it is beginning to be seen that the major international conferences of the war have failed rather signally to ensure anything like a lasting peace.

The Atlantic Charter was a memorable document in that it set forth some of the conditions of an ideal world. But the Ten Commandments of an ideal world also set forth the conditions of an ideal world and everyone has seen that six hundred centuries of humanity has done to them. The principles of an ideal world are further expanded in the four Gospels. But the habit of living entirely according to the teachings of the four Gospels has not been fully acquired in two thousand years.

The many conferences between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt have dealt, so far as we know, wholly with the realities of war. Washington, Casablanca and Quebec were strategic conferences. The only meeting, so far as we are aware, which dealt, even remotely, with post-war relationships is that between Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin and the later one with Chiang Kai-shek.

Probably, the meeting with Stalin was the most vital as it, at least, appeared to touch on relationships which may weight the balance between future war and future peace. This week saw the emergence of doubts about the efficacy of even this remarkable and historic conference.

For, during this week, the Russian armies drove irresistibly into Poland and the Soviet Republics served this significant notice on all whom it might concern.

"The issue between ourselves and Poland," they said, in effect, "is a private and personal issue and the Soviets will not discuss it with anyone, even their allies."

Now I am not aware, of course, what Britain and the United States are prepared to do in the face of that defiant manifesto. But thousands of our people will remember that Britain and Canada went to war in the first place to defend the integrity of Poland. Thousands of our troops will remember that they were recruited on the plea that our national honor was concerned in seeing that Poland was free.

I am not prepared to say that the Polish situation is sufficient to cause a rupture with Russia. I am not prepared to say that even the cause of Poland's freedom would be best served by provoking differences with the Soviets at the present time.

But where is the thing to end? How many more of our sacred national pledges will have to be sacrificed to present military expediency? Does the situation not begin to present the intolerable prospect of the disappearance of all our national ideals? And is it not conceivable that we may presently find ourselves fighting for the very things which we condemned in the enemy?

For the seizure of Poland by Russia would be quite as iniquitous as the seizure of Poland by Germany.

Of course, we have no right to assume, as yet, that Russia does propose to seize Poland or any part of Poland. Her present inaction is ostensibly aimed at Germany. And the question of Polish frontiers is quite as complicated and perplexing as the traditional suit in chancery.

But, if Russia's intentions, to use a Victorian phrase, are strictly honorable, why does she refuse to discuss her relationship with Poland with any of her allies? That is the disturbing factor.

It is disturbing because, right on the heels of a conference which was supposed to place international relations on a frank and friendly basis, we have news of the major participants in that conference telling the other two that she is waging a private war which is none of their business.

Now I am not condemning Russia in the least. She has her own standards and her own policies. But that vast love for humankind which was pictured as welling up in the hearts of all the allies seems to have mysteriously receded.

This is not a complaint about Russia's behavior. It is a warning about too much faith in things to come. For we need Russia. The world needs Russia. The heart and essence of the recent conference between Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin was that their three nations were committed to a policy of continued co-operation.

That understanding was the hope of the world. If it does not work out in the case of Poland, what happens to the rest of it? Must we wipe that hope completely out?

I began by saying that the situation is full of dynamite. It is full of dynamite because the structure upon which we were building our plans for a long period of peace seems to be shaky. Its shakiness is revealed in Russia's inexplicable attitude, not towards Poland, but towards her allies in the case of Poland.

There are those who perversely and obstinately believe that victory alone will ensure peace. There are those who maintain that the Atlantic Charter is enough to outlaw war. There are those who feel that any military alliance is postwar days will be an affront to the spirit of the new world and the spirit of peace. There has been a lot of talk in this strain lately.

I am beginning to suspect that many of our more zealous international reformers are getting an allied victory confused, in their minds, with the second coming of our Lord.

The truth is that the maintenance of peace must depend upon a continued military alliance between Britain, America and Russia; Field Marshal Smuts put it very concisely when he said recently in London:

"These three powers must retain the leadership in war and in peace and be responsible, in the first instance, for the maintenance of security and for the preservation of world peace; and the primary responsibility will not be affected by any duties resting on the rest of the United Nations."

In other words, if the majority of the peoples of the world are devoted to continued peace, there must be some authority and force to implement their will.

The truth is that violence, in a benign form, will always be necessary. If that were not so, the first act of the reformed new world would be to abolish all police forces which, as Euclid might have said, is unmitigated tripe.

Many good Christians who deplore this viewpoint forget that the biological history begins with a war in which his bone and his Christ was a career of unexampled metaphysical violence and that the Cross itself is an explosion—an explosion of the circle, that hopeless pagan symbol of human life.

All the symbolism of Christianity is violent and forceful. Buddha is always depicted in contemplation. Christ is always depicted in action—even if it is only the consummate action of dying on a tree. The gargoyles of the cathedrals are shouting gargoyles. "Change," "creation," "salvation," the verbiage of Christianity, are the most dynamic and violent words in our language.

There must be teeth and force and violence in any lasting peace. We can't simply pass a resolution to abolish international sin. We must have force to implement our resolution.

That is why a co-operating Russia is absolutely essential to world peace. And that is why the present non-co-operation of Russia in the Polish affair must cause us grave concern.

Conchies

This week the farmers of British Columbia asked the Federal Government to forbid the sale of land to Menominites, Doukhobors, Hutches and other conscientious objectors until the men now in uniform have returned from the war and are placed, if they so desire, on the land.

The British Columbia farmers alleged that many of these groups are buying choice lands in many parts of Canada and that there is a danger that only worthless and inaccessible tracts will be available to ex-servicemen.

If this is true, and there seems no reason to doubt it, every section of the community should see to it that protective action is taken at once.

In my opinion, the prohibition on conscientious objectors owning land should go much further than a mere ban until the troops are discharged and settled.

To own land is a privilege—a very high privilege. And surely it should not be extended to those who refuse to fight for the security of it. Men who decline to fight for the country and its homes have no business either to own land or to vote.

There is a great deal of nonsense talked about respecting the opinions of conscientious objectors. It seems exceedingly odd that these fellows who are too spiritually refined to fight, are not too spiritually refined to feather their own nests while their more courageous and decent neighbors are fighting.

Old Age Pensions

This week, J. G. Turgeon, chairman of the House of Commons special committee on reconstruction and re-establishment, expressed the opinion that the Old Age Pensions Act should not be amended, but replaced.

That is one of the most sensible remarks about reconstruction which has been made to date.

The old act may have been enough for a beginning in social legislation. But while it was intended by the Parliament of Canada to give generous treatment to Canada's aged folk, it became in the hands of ungenerous, pettifogging and mean.

The old act is unacceptable in four major particulars:

First, a maximum pittance of $365 a year for an aged person is wretchedly insufficient.

Secondly, the rule that a person must be a pauper before enjoying the dubious benefactions of the act is cruel and inhuman.

Thirdly, to prohibit a person from working while drawing the maximum old age pension is uneconomic and absurd.

Fourthly, to commence the pension when a person is past the normal span of life, that is to say, when he or she is actuarially dead, is sheer penny-pinching nonsense.

The popular indifference to the inequities of this act is amazing. There seems to be general forgetfulness of the fact that while a public work, escape tuberculosis, cancer, heart disease and so on, everybody is a candidate either for old age or an early grave.

Heartless

This week Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and once his trusted adviser, was lined up against a wall and shot for treason.

In a trial which is described as "farcical," (although it managed to produce some fine poetic justice) Count Ciano was found guilty of conspiring against Mussolini. In a quaint act of so-called mercy, Mussolini permitted Ciano to be shot unblinded and facing the rifles. Personally I fail to see why it is any less injurious to be shot in the chest than in the back.

However, the trial and the execution must have been a hurried, furtive and sordid business. These things are dreadful to contemplate—the bitter hate, the treachery, the wantonly spilled blood.

But the most dreadful feature of the whole ghastly business was revealed in a single sentence. Ciano's wife Edda, that daughter of Mussolini who is said to exercise such tremendous influence over her father is said to have refused to intercede in her husband's behalf. She spoke not one single word to save the father of her children.

Now Ciano was doubtless a highly unpleasant person. Gaffer, libertine, liar, drunkard and fool, he richly deserved his fate. But the cold ferocity of his wife in declining to lift a finger to save him is more horrible than any of his crimes.

It shows to what low estate the marriage institution has fallen among the Fascists and Nazis. It

Handy Cupboards Are Essential

They Protect Contents And Save Time, and Space

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Old Mother Hubbard's dog certainly has his troubles, but he would have had a closet all his own in which to store his bone if his mistress had known about under-stairs closets. The space underneath steps is frequently wasted, and it could make excellent storage closets for all sorts of things.

Such closets could be used for the dog's equipment, the children's toys, rubbers, and overcoats, for another. They could also contain summer window ventilators, the electric fan, luggage and games are others.

Special storage for special equipment, too, is possible here and it won't take up needed space elsewhere. A small-door closet for father's fishing rods is something mother will appreciate as well as dad. His stuff will always be where it is supposed to be and, more important, will be safe.

Another useful closet is the step variety. Cut and hinge a tread of the first step for a place to keep the family rubbers and overcoats. It will be a godsend in these days when rubbers must be handled with care, since it is almost impossible to replace them, and what you can buy can't compare in quality to the old ones.

Easily Made

Stairs that are open underneath are, of course, the simplest to remodel into closets. But closed stairs have definite possibilities too. Anyone handy with ordinary tools can do the job and the material cost is negligible.

It is wise to separate each closet with a plywood partition so the contents won't get mixed up. Use a sheet of quarter-inch board cut to fit the stairs' width, nail at the top to the back of one of the risers and at the bottom to a footing of furring strip.

Plywood or wallboard of the rigid type is suitable for the front face. Again, use a footing of furring strip as a base for nailing at the bottom. Nail the top to the back side of the stringer—the slanting board that supports the steps—and to 2-inch by 3-inch uprights set at intervals of about two feet. Cut this to fit carefully, not forgetting spaces for the doors.

A small molding run along under the stringer finishes the top and a baseboard or molding does the same for the bottom.

Doors can also be plywood but this had better be the half inch stock for proper rigidity. Give them a frame of one-inch by two-inch material on the back for strength and so you'll have something to set hinges into. Hang them so there will be at least a half-inch play underneath each door for ease in swinging.

Art Treasures

Speaking of storage cupboards, I was recently told that plans have been made for preserving the art treasures of Europe in places that have been or will be occupied by the United Nations.

Mr. Anthony Blunt, who has been working in association with the War Office in England in drawing up plans, explained some of the steps that have been taken.

The same sort of arrangements have been made in Sicily as were used in North Africa, he said. A special section has been set up in the Allied Military Government to look after art treasures.

First of all they are making a careful survey to see what damage has already been done. Also, and more important, they are seeing what immediate steps can be taken to prop up buildings which have been partly bombed and might collapse further. Or they have to find some way to cover up roofless churches or buildings in which frescoes or mosaics have been left to wind and rain.

It is expected that most of the smaller art treasures, paintings, vestments, church ornaments, and so on will have been safely put away by the Italian authorities. The Allied authorities have given orders that no "souvenirs" of the kind may be exported from the country.

A team of experts has been working for some time preparing lists of art treasures to be specially looked after in the various countries into which Allied forces may go.

Trying to interest her class in the English language, the teacher began explaining the meanings of various words.

"Now," she said, "the word 'rise' means to 'come into view.'"

"Not always, miss," retorted one youngster.

"Why not, Jimmy?"

"Well, my dad asked for a rise, but it didn't come into view," was the bland reply.

A very young and new subaltern, being shown round by the sergeant-major came across a group of soldiers talking in a corner.

"What are those men doing?" he asked.

"Oh, swinging the lead," answered the sergeant-major.

"By Jove," exclaimed the subaltern, "beastly heavy work, what? Still, the war has to be won." And waving his hand to the men he shouted: "Carry on, boys, carry on!"

The British government has poured more than $1,500,000,000 into the American aircraft industry, and spent more than $173,000,000,000 directly in capital assistance to American corporations making aircraft, tanks and guns.

Canadian-Australian Relations

New Cordiality, Interest Between the Two Sister Dominions

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—Interest in Canada on the part of Australians and New Zealanders, never strong in the past, has begun to quicken. This impression remains vivid after an extensive tour "down under." This interest in Canada, of course, is part of a larger transformation. In welcoming three Canadian newspapermen to Australia on Nov. 8, Prime Minister John Curtin said in the course of a short luncheon address: "We have learned in the most desperate circumstances that no one is sufficiently strong to stand alone."

This provides a central clue to the new Australian attitude to the world. To the allies among the United Nations in this war, and to Canada.

One agency making Australia more Canadian-conscious than ever before is the Canadian high commissioner, Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, and his staff in Canberra. Mr. Curtin, in the same speech, referred to Mr. Davis as "a good Canadian and a good Australian." This was our introduction to the relations that exist between Mr. Davis and the Australian authorities, and, as well, the Australian people in general. Subsequently, in the course of 12,000 miles of travelling through Australia and of conversations with hundreds of Australians in every state, we obtained ample confirmation that the present Canadian high commissioner has scored a great hit in his relations with Australians.

Wide Travels

Mr. Justice Davis is on leave from the appeal court of Saskatchewan, as he was when he served in the wartime administration in Ottawa as associate deputy minister of national war services. As a western Canadian, he has obviously been someone to the liking of the average Australian. His travels through Australia, during his term so far, have been extensive; and Australians like anyone who takes a sincere interest in their country. Like Canadians they like to hear impressions of their country from a visitor, though Mr. Davis is something more than a visitor. Prime Minister Curtin's reference to Mr.

Davis as "a good Australian" provided a clue to the discovery, to be made later, that Mr. Davis has become an articulate booster of Australia and its people, but this has not dimmed in any way his enthusiasm for Canada.

The experiment of the department of external affairs in sending a press attaché to the Canberra high commissioner's staff has worked out well. Paul Malone, the press attaché, formerly worked for the Edmonton Journal and the Vancouver Province. He had also worked for several papers in Australia on an Empire Press Union exchange. Staff men on most of the leading newspapers in Australia knew Mr. Malone. His value to Canada, as a source of Canadian information for Australians, is high.

Canada is well served by its official representatives both in Australia and New Zealand. Lt.-Col. L. M. Cosgrave, formerly a Canadian trade

Journey Among Warriors

Gandhi Says India Can Win Only Through Non-Violence; Cannot Transform Suddenly for War

Chapter XIII.

By EVE CURIE

I felt very self-conscious to call up the seventy-two-year-old Mahatma, the most powerful Indian in India, the man whom every newspaperman in New Delhi was frantically trying to see. With a somewhat trembling voice I gave my name to the secretary who answered the telephone. At the other end the secretary said: "Will you wait, please." I waited—for a period which seemed endless. Then the secretary came back and asked:

"Can you wait?"

"This seemed to me beside the point. I answered, however, affirmatively. Without any question I could wait. I had, in fact, been waiting for years."

"Well then," said the secretary, "Mr. Gandhi will take his daily walk with you to-morrow morning at seven."

I think that I blushed with joy. It had come true. I had a rendezvous with Gandhi!

Gandhi was even smaller, even leaner than I had expected. Somehow, resting half naked on that immaculate mat, he looked like a very precious, dark, tiny animal—like an insect pinned on a cushion. He had a small, triangular head, almost bald, with large, prominent ears, a big nose, a short, gray moustache, covering no upper lip at all, and a very thick lower lip. His expressive, elastic mouth chewed conspicuously the English words which came out clearly and slowly, in that famous voice which (wrote Nehru) was "soft and gentle," with "steel hidden away somewhere in it."

By mysterious ways, Gandhi, was extremely impressive. He made me at once frantically shy, giving me the feeling that he could read through me. Yet he was not in the least solemn. Behind his old-fashioned spectacles, edged with a metal rim, his clever eyes were friendly and witty. In his smile too there was humor, and a wonderful sense of humor. The Mahatma had more charm than almost anybody I had ever met.

It so turned out that we did not go for the promised "walk" at once. Gandhi had first to finish his breakfast of sliced oranges and mangoes. A woman in Indian clothes, whose name I did not well hear but who, I believe, was his disciple, Miss Kusrad Nair, sat at his feet, on the floor. On the other side of the Mahatma sat Mr. Pyarelal.

EXTREMELY IMPRESSIVE

To this stubborn pacifist I was bringing the point of view of the average citizen of the conquered countries of Europe, of one who profoundly believed that an Axis victory would inflict on India the horrible fate of Poland, of France. I really wanted to tell Gandhi—rather foolishly: "Come into the war with your people—for India's sake." To my arguments, he raised this invariable motto:

"I am against all wars, against the use of force. I believe in non-violence. I would like to think that India will be, through her non-violence, a messenger of peace to the whole world."

Indeed, after so many years of struggle for India's freedom, of "non-violent" civil-disobedience campaigns, Gandhi was faced with perhaps the most dramatic decision of his life. Only the day before—on Friday afternoon—he had had a talk with Sir Stafford Cripps, who had laid before him the British proposals. The long-dreamed-of independence of India, which had inspired Gandhi's actions in the last thirty years, was perhaps in sight. But the war situation, and particularly the recent defeats suffered by the Allies in the East, linked indissolubly the problem of India's emancipation with that of her defence.

NON-VIOLENCE

Would the Nationalists try to forget their bitterness against Britain and help, either by actual fighting or by non-belligerent co-operation, in the defeat of the Axis? To this question, quite a few Hindu and Muslim leaders were prepared to answer, "yes"—provided the constitutional scheme devised by the War Cabinet appeared to them satisfactory (which remained to be seen). But Mr. Gandhi answered, "No." In a speech addressed some weeks before to the members of the Congress Working Committee he had declared: "Non-violence has brought us nearer to complete independence than ever before. We dare not exchange it even for independence."

He reiterated this to me in these words: "India can win her laurels only through non-violence. What we have achieved in the past twenty years shows that immense results could be obtained if the principle of non-violence were generally practised by all our people."

UTTERLY WRONG

In a sense, it was utterly wrong to apply to Gandhi the word "pacifist". The little man who sat in front of me on his white mattress really was a fighter who, having invented a new weapon, had thereupon immediately rejected as no good the weapons previously in use.

No doubt, Gandhi has been amazingly successful so far in defying without arms, with his bare hands, "the whole might" of the British Empire. But today the immediate danger to India did not come from England. It came from Japan. I remarked:

"You might find it tougher opposing by non-violence Japanese or German divisions than undermining British rule."

He agreed by a nod of his head and said immediately: "It is, however, the same fight." Then he added, "It will be hard. But this is the hour to live up to our faith: we are working for posterity. Were the Japanese to invade India, I wouldn't encourage our people to fight with arms. Neither would I encourage them to make a pact with the aggressors. I would tell the masses: Do not fight—and do not surrender in your souls. If the Japanese rule succeeded the British, it is then the Japanese rule that, in turn, we would fight with non-violence."

I insisted, "The fight will be tougher."

The Mahatma proudly lifted his chin and said in an even voice: "It will bring out the best that is in us."

"But how can you hope to win a battle over such ruthless enemies by non-violence alone?" I continued. "Don't you see that, in your struggle against Britain, you had a fair chance because the English themselves did not fight you 'violently'?"

TWO ALTERNATIVES

Gandhi replied: "In a non-violent struggle, there are two alternatives. Either the enemy comes to terms with you—you have won without spilling blood—or the enemy annihilates you. This last solution is no worse than what a war brings about anyway."

I commented on the atrocities perpetrated by the Japanese in the Philippines, in Hong Kong, in Nanking, in the Philippines. This only made him most remark calmly: "The measurement of our convictions must not be physical, but mental."

I said: "So you accept the idea of India eventually refusing to fight, refusing even to be defended by others?"

Gandhi explained: "We have no choice. It is physically impossible, anyway, to transform India suddenly into an armed nation. To give you people weapons and to teach them non-violence are two different methods of making them strong. Both take time. I believe my method is surer, more precise and, in the long run, more successful."

GENERAL ADVANCEMENT

"Nations fighting with non-violence are unconquerable, for their strength does not depend on the number of machine guns and rifles they may possess. Also, women and children can fight 'non-violently', whereas they remain passive in a military action. Non-violence thus provides for the emancipation of women and children and is a factor in the general advancement of a country. When a method is good, there is no need to worry about immediate results. Success is bound to come in the end."

On no point could I find Mr. Gandhi in contradiction. With his intransigent creed, he bravely accepted in his mind the tragic consequences of the attitude he advocated. He also believed that any past attempt to resist armed aggression ought to have been done non-violently. Moreover, he had very personal ideas on the subject of war guilt. He said expressly to me that "there was no responsibility for the 1914 war on any side, as three quarters of the world were owned by the Allies" and that, as far as the present war was concerned, Hitler had been "made by Britain". When, in 1940, England had found herself facing Germany alone, he had advised the British to let the Nazis invade their islands and simply fight them "non-violently". Of the United States he said that he regretted that America should have entered the war, "thus abandoning her role as a peace-maker."

I mentioned my half-compatriots, the Poles who, by their heroism on countless battlefields, kept their country alive—the Poles who had even accepted to fight at the side of the Russians, their former oppressors, in order to liberate their fatherland. Obviously, Gandhi did not think it really fair of me to choose that instance. He dismissed the Poles, not without disdain, by saying:

RACE OF FIGHTERS

"They are a race of fighters who have not the slightest notion of what a philosophy such as non-violence consists of. To fight is their only way of expressing themselves."

I spoke to Gandhi at length about my own people, the French. Some of them, in 1940, had given up resisting the Germans by force. Losing heart, they had sought an armistice with the victor. The frightful material and moral consequences of the capitulation of Compiègne were now weighing heavily on the entire French nation—and on the world. I said:

"Can't you see, that, for us, the difference is too subtle between a 'non-violent' attitude and certain forms of defeatism and cowardly? After the catastrophe that has crushed our country, after so much misery and shame has been inflicted upon us, the French patriots have, today, a profound repulsion for anything resembling a refusal to fight the enemy."

Gandhi said softly: "I understand. I do. But now, I will tell you a story. There was a Pathan, in the Northwest of India, who was famous for his bravery. I converted him to non-violence. Now he says: 'It was at the time I fought that I was a coward. When I had only a rifle, I was afraid of the man who had a machine gun. When I had only a machine gun, I was afraid of the man who had a cannon. But since I have understood how useless the slaughter is altogether, I am never afraid.' This ex-warrior has found the secret of true courage."

DIE OF HUNGER

"Your Pathan," I protested, "lives under the British—not the Nazis—not Hitler. Let's come back to the French. We who are outside France, on free soil, cannot let them wait in captivity. If they wait too long, they will die. They will die of hunger. All our families will die of hunger. So will our war prisoners in Germany."

The Mahatma stubbornly replied: "They will not die. If they unanimously opposed the conqueror with non-violent resistance, the Germans would have to come to terms with them before they die. I don't blame you for wanting to liberate France, just as I want to see India free. But it is a sign of too great impatience to think that any country can really be liberated by the use of guns. In order to beat the Germans—or the Japanese—you must become stronger than they are—therefore stronger than they are. Then what have you won?"

"So victory is of no importance?" I asked.

"No," Gandhi replied firmly: "In the sense that you mean, it has no importance."

Soldier Believed Doomed to Death Is Saved by Penicillin

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A new page in the glowing record of penicillin was written yesterday when United States Army doctors credited the drug with saving the life of a soldier afflicted with a brain disorder considered a certain killer.

A few weeks after the chief of the Walter Reed hospital's neurosurgical service had declared him as good as dead, Private Herbert F. Collins, 23, of Holyoke, Mass., was cured of a secondary brain abscess, an infection which developed from an abscess he still had on his left lung.

Primary abscesses of the brain—those that occur alone—have been cured in the past, some by penicillin. But doctors at the hospital said that never, to their knowledge, had a secondary infection such as Collins' been conquered by surgery or any other means.

Veteran Airmen Get Gold Wings

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—(CP)—In the first ceremony of its kind in Canada 40 Royal Canadian Air Force pilots will receive their gold wings, indicating they have completed one or more tours of operations, Monday at the nearby Lachine depot. Air Minister Power announced recently that special insignia would be presented to Canadian pilots having completed a tour of operations.

Daily War Map—Exclusively in The Edmonton Bulletin

Rumania, at best a lukewarm Axis ally since Germans "peacefully" took it over in September, 1940, is now the focus of Balkan unrest bringing Hitler new headaches. Her great acquisition of territory from adjacent nations, before and after World War I, left her surrounded by neighbors whose resentment burns close to the point of vengeful action. In addition, hapless Rumania is now threatened by Red Armies advancing from east, Allied bombings from south and total Nazi-military occupation.

Foundry Workers In 79 U.S. Plants To Go on Strike

SEATTLE, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Foundrymen of 79 plants in Oregon and Washington states will go on strike Tuesday morning, Neil Pardo, secretary of the International Molders and Foundry Workers' Union of North America (A.F.L.), announced last night. Six thousand workers are involved.

The strike, which will become effective at the start of the day shift Tuesday, was the result of the combined reports from a vote taken yesterday by the Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and Everett locals of the union, Pardo said.

The men voted to strike pending ruling by the United States National War Labor Board on an appeal by the workers against a regional board ruling which rejected demands by foundry journeymen and molders for an eight-cent an hour wage increase.

Canadians Getting Clearance Reports Regarding Forces

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Canadians receive as thorough and clearcut a report on the activities of their army in Italy and Sicily as the people of any country have yet received on forces overseas.

Joseph W. G. Clark, chief of information for the armed forces, said last night on his return from a lengthy visit overseas.

This happened, he said, despite many difficulties encountered by the war correspondents and the public relations officers in the forces.

Careful and detailed plans have been made for reporting Canadian participation in the new invasion of western Europe now believed to be in prospect, he added.

Plan One Union For All Workers In B.C. Shipyards

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Formation of one union for all workers in British Columbia's shipbuilding industry was agreed upon at a conference here yesterday attended by delegates representing 11 locals and approximately 20,000 workers at Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Prince Rupert.

The new industrial union will be affiliated with the Canadian Congress of Labor, C.C.L. officials assisted in planning for the new body to be known as the Shipyard and General Workers' Federation.

It is believed plans are under way for formation of similar industrial unions in the shipbuilding industries of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

19 Persons Killed, Sheep Destroyed In Bush Fires

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Week-end bush fires killed 19 persons, burned off thousands of acres of grazing land in the livestock producing regions of Victoria and destroyed thousands of sheep.

Thousands of troops and civilians fought the fires, which caused even greater material damage than disastrous 1939 outbreak, and they now seem controlled.

Incomplete reports showed about 500 homes were destroyed and many more damaged Friday. Thousands of sheep, cattle and horses which survived the fire, wander helplessly over the blackened land without fodder. The agricultural department is sending feed in an attempt to save them.

It was estimated that 250,000 sheep were destroyed in the western district alone and many others which were injured had to be shot.

Canned Salmon Not Available For Some Time

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Though the sale of canned salmon becomes effective today, the prices board said in a statement last night that it will probably be some time before the product is generally available in retail stores.

"A small quantity of Atlantic canned salmon now is on the market in some areas, but the 200,000 cases arranged for from Pacific packers have not yet moved into trade channels, the board said.

The board said the product will gradually move into retail channels during the next several weeks, and as soon as storekeepers have it they may sell it on the basis of one meat coupon per quarter-pound tin of salmon.

Plane Missing

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17.—(CP)—A twin-engine R.C.A.F. monoplane bound for Victoria from Lethbridge has not reported since 5:45 p.m. P.D.T. Sunday, when it was about 25 miles east of Vancouver, Air Force officials said here last night. No other details were given.

Speed, Accuracy

Every Care Taken by R.C.A.F. In Giving Casualty Reports

This first of a series of three articles by a Canadian Press reporter tells of the speedy and accurate manner in which casualty lists are handled by Canada's armed forces and especially by the R.C.A.F.—EDITOR.

By JACK BRAYLEY

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Based on sympathetic treatment, thoroughness, accuracy and speed, the casualties branch of the R.C.A.F. is proud of its record in handling this delicate bridge between the service and next-of-kin of Canada's airmen casualties.

For accuracy and efficiency there has to be a certain amount of routine formality and procedure in relaying information to families but great care is taken that a personal note of sympathy is retained.

Errors occasionally are made but all information is sifted through a cross-checking system. Good news is relayed fast—often by long distance telephone. Bad news is painstakingly re-checked and confirmed and then relayed to the family phrased in appropriate terms.

DIRECTOR OF BRANCH

Director of this branch of the R.C.A.F. is Sqdn. Ldr. W. R. Gunn, a native of Summerside, P.E.I.

He recalled the worry caused his mother during the last war. As a buck private in the 29th British Columbia battalion he was captured at St. Elloi, Belgium, in April, 1916. He was released in November, 1918, among the first Allied prisoners.

Six months elapsed between the time he was reported missing and the time his mother learned he was a prisoner-of-war. As he took over his job he made up his mind his information would be both accurate and speedy.

The process of checking and relaying information on missing airmen is continued until hope is abandoned and evidence or elapsed time indicates death. This work is complicated by the fact that not only are there R.C.A.F. men serving in every war theatre—some of them in zones of flimsy communications—but there are Canadian personnel in 1,000 R.A.F. units in Britain and 300 R.A.F. units abroad.

ACCURATE SERVICE

Sqdn. Ldr. Gunn says the German casualty notification service through the International Red Cross is fairly accurate. However,

Canadian fliers on being made prisoners, often tell their captors their comrades were killed so that the airmen can make good their escape.

Canadians in the R.A.F., and members of the Commonwealth Training Plan from Britain, Australia and New Zealand, who become casualties in Canada, are all handled through the branch.

Casualty lists for the press are not released until confirmation is received that next-of-kin have been notified. Casualty telegrams are hand-delivered and messengers have orders to give them, where possible, to male members of the family.

MAJORITY GRATEFUL

The great majority of persons are grateful for the painstaking attention they receive. Some, however, through misunderstanding and in the stress of the moment, offer complaints.

The casualties branch staff listens to all criticism, takes great pains in investigating and following up suggestions and then sends a sympathetic reply. No matter how unjust the criticism may be, the branch, remembering the circumstances, gives a soft answer.

More of "Navy's Silence" Is Urged

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 17.—(CP)—Bishop G. A. Wells, chief Protestant chaplain of the Royal Canadian Navy, speaking in Cope's United church here yesterday, said it was disgusting to him to see people haled before a microphone to tell of their experiences. He said the people need more of the Navy's silence. "Those men do not talk of their exploits; they are modest without an inferiority complex."

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

A NETFUL of pucks can cross a goal-line between now and playoff time, but Canadian Athletic Club juniors by virtue of taking three games in a row last week and looking mighty good in accomplishing the feat, have emerged as a real threat in Memorial Cup circles.

Juniors in Edmonton never saw ice this season until Dec. 21 and the league opened on Jan. 1. That meant four weeks to cover all practices and the five games played, but the boys have taken full advantage of their opportunities and—thanks to a kindly disposed weatherman—are all coming along fast.

The late start still means a continued intensive hockey diet and Director Bill Harris has decreed another three games this week, the Navy doing the marathon stretch this time. The Sailors play E.A.C. tonight and again on Saturday, with the Canadians the opposition for the mid-week attraction.

CANADIANS LOOK GOOD

ON their showing to date, Canadians give promise of developing into a better balanced club than represented Edmonton in the playoffs last spring. Filling Bill Lancaster's place in goal is of course a tall order and it still remains to be proven how Alex Cavalli will stand up under serious pressure, but he is looking better each time out.

Bob Causgrove is greatly improved over last year and the Canadians appear to have real defensive strength in Harvey Green and Bernie O'Connor and they have been trying out Ivan Krook, the Drumheller boy, having moved him back from left wing.

Up front things must be decidedly encouraging for Coach Joe Brown

Rangers Overcome Boston After Seven Defeats in Row

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The New York Rangers came from far behind last night to defeat Boston Bruins, 8-6, scoring five goals in succession during the second and third periods before 15,201 persons at Madison Square Garden. The victory broke the Rangers' National Hockey League losing streak of seven straight games.

It was New York's fifth victory in 28 games this season. The defeat cost the Bruins, who had won Saturday night's tilt between the same teams, 7-5, a chance to tie for second place in the standings.

Two newcomers from Eddie Shore's Buffalo American League club were important figures in turning the tide for the New Yorkers. Kilby MacDonald, discarded by the Rangers a few years ago, played at centre with Bryan Hextall and Dutch Hiller to give the blue shirt a line that always was dangerous. Rookie Bob Dill, improving with every game was effective on defence besides scoring one goal and earning two assists.

Hextall and little Johnny Mahaffy were the only players to score twice. Fernand Gauthier produced the winning goal on a flashy unassisted play when he stole the puck at Boston's blue line and went in to break a 5-5 tie.

NEW YORK—MacAuley, Heller, B. McDonald; K. MacDonald; Hextall, Hiller, Boush, Mahaffy, Dill, D'Amore, Boush, Gauthier, Aubuchon, J. McDonald, Demarco.

Referee: Norm Lamport; linesmen: John Wilken and Sam Babcock.

SUMMARY
First period: 1—Boston, B. McDonald (Gauldin), 3:48; 2—Boston, Labrie (Kopak), 6:35; 3—New York, K. MacDonald (Aubuchon), 11:20; 4—New York, Dill (Mahaffy, Gauthier), 15:10; 5—Boston, Palazzari (Rittiger, Labrie), 15:35; 6—Boston, Rittiger (Kopak), 15:45; 7—Boston, Art Jackson (Egan, Cain), 17:55; Penalties: Palazzari, Gauldin, Cain.

Second period: 8—New York, Mahaffy (Dill), 14:55; 9—New York, W. McDonald, 15:07; 10—New York, Hextall (Hill, K. MacDonald), 17:40; Penalties: none.

Third period: 11—New York, Hextall (Hill), 14:23; 12—Boston, Egan (H. Jackson), 17:21; 13—Boston, Egan (H. Jackson), 17:21; 14—New York, Mahaffy (J. McDonald), 18:48; Penalties: Dill, W. McDonald.

BUFFALO WHIPS HORNETS 4-2
INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Indianapolis Capitals, bad men of the American Hockey League, breezed to a 4-1 victory over the Providence Reds here last night.

The Cap starting line of Winky Smith, Johnny Sorrell and Bill Thomson bore the brunt of the Indianapolis offense, scoring three of the four goals. Thomson got two of them.

Alex Ritson got the other goal for the Caps while Yank Boyd tied the only marker for the Reds.

Tec-Tangs Trim Currie 7-2

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Tecumseh-Mustangs merged into a three-cornered tie for leadership of the Alberta Senior Services League for the second time this season when they trounced A-16 Currie Army 7-2 at the Victoria Arena Saturday night.

The Combines out-smarted, out-fought and out-checked the Currie soldiers so effectively that the issue was never in doubt from the opening whistle.

It was a rough affair with both sides handing out plenty of hard checks and officials were forced to impose 16 minor and two 10-minute misconduct penalties in order to hold the contest in hand. The year's largest crowd of 3,600 fans were treated to a great display of hockey.

AB. Ab McDougall led the Combines attack with two markers and the others went to OS. Eddie Wares, FL. Ken Hunter, AB. Roy Sawyer, OS. Sweeney Schriener and Sgt. Johnny Chad. Cpl. Dunc Grant and Cpl. Harold Scott were the marksmen for Currie.

LINEUPS

Officials: Johnny Souter and Bill Harding.

Coast Circuit To Disregard Previous Games

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17.—(CP)—The Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League, reduced to six, to foster teams through withdrawal of the Army and Air Force entries, will begin with a new schedule today with all previous games this season thrown out. It was decided by the league executive at a meeting here yesterday.

The four teams remaining in the loop are Victoria Machinery Depot, Vancouver S.I. Regis and New Westminster Lodestars, all civilian clubs and Esquimalt Navy.

Navy officials told the meeting they have been informed the sailors could participate in league and provincial playoffs but not in Allan Cup interprovincial playoffs.

The meeting, called to study the situation resulting from withdrawal of Nanaimo Army and Sea Island R.C.A.F. Seahawks, decided the new schedule will continue until March 4 when the top three teams will begin playoffs for the league title.

Babe Didrikson Is Re-Instated As an Amateur

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Babe Didrikson, in private life the wife of wrestler George Zaharias, was re-instated as an amateur golfer Saturday at the United States Golf Association's 50th annual convention.

Martin G. Bogue of Great Neck, Long Island, N.Y., took over the presidency in a brief session. James B. McHale, Jr., former Stanford University star and former assistant to Craig Wood also was re-instated as an amateur.

Miss Didrikson, former Olympic track competitor, was declared ineligible by the U.S.G.A. in May of 1935 because of her professionalism in other sports.

She competed in various pro and open events, capturing the women's western open at Milwaukee in 1940 and the San Francisco match play open for women in 1942.

PROVIDENCE LOSES TO PITTSBURGH 6-2
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Hornets won their fifth consecutive Saturday home game Saturday night, downing the Providence Reds in an American Hockey League game 6-2.

Tony Hemmerling and Jamie Jamieson showed sparkling form for the locals. Hemmerling r.n.g up a goal and three assists while Jamieson caged the puck twice,

Gaston Gauthier, French-Canadian ace of the Hershey Bears, rang up a "hat trick" to give his team a 4-1 victory over the rejuvenated Buffalo Bisons in an American Hockey League contest before more than 8,000 fans here Saturday night.

Stars for Chicago

Rated one of the best in the National Hockey League for many years, Mike Karakas, recently purchased from the Providence Reds, is making his return to the Chicago nets a highly successful one. His first appearance was spoiled by a 4-2 defeat, but last Wednesday he made a great showing as the Hawks ended a six-game losing streak and last night only allowed one goal as his team tied with the league leading Canadians.

Goaltending Brilliant

Canadiens Tie 1-1 With Black Hawks

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The league-leading Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks battled to a 1-1 tie last night in the Chicago Stadium before a record crowd of 18,150, in a National Hockey League match.

It was the first tie this season for the fifth-place Hawks, who previously had dropped five consecutive games to the leaders. Montreal had three previous deadlocks and three losses.

The Hawks drew first blood, scoring in the opening period when Fido Purpur, right wing, came through with a clean shot in front of the net at 15:45. He did the trick unassisted.

Emile Bouchard, Montreal defenseman, put the Canadiens back in the running at 14:51 of the second period on a beautiful side shot from about 25 feet out. Assists on the play went to Murph Chamberlain and Phil Watson.

Action was fast and furious throughout the entire match, with goals by Bill Durnan of Montreal and Mike Karakas of Chicago turning in excellent jobs. It was Karakas' first "Chicago" appearance since 1939, when he was shipped by the Hawks to Providence. He returned to Hawks' fold this month.

LINEUPS
Montreal: Durnan; Bouchard, Lamoureux, Lach, Blake, Richard, Subi, Mike McMahon, Glen Harmon, O'Connor, Chamberlain, Watson, Majeau, Hefferman.
Chicago: Karakas; Johnson, Seibert, Smith, Bentley, Moskno, Subi, Purpur, March, Dye, Gottselig, Dahlstrom, Heyinger.

Referee—Bill Chadwick; linesmen—Steve Neale, Joe Springer.

SUMMARY
First period: 1—Chicago, Purpur 15:45; Penalty—Bouchard.

Third period: Scoring—none. Penalty—Harmon.

Pin-Boy Shortage Problem Solved
ITHACA, N.Y., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Cornell University co-ed bowlers have solved the pin-boy shortage problem. Rules for a tournament next week-end call for one member of each team of four to set up pins, and a second to keep score, while the other two bowl. In the next game, jobs are reversed.

Fractures Hand
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Matchmaker Jake Minto reported Saturday that x-rays showed that Fritzie Ziv's left hand had been fractured in his losing fight with Jake LaMotta Friday night at Detroit. Friends said the broken bone might mean the end of Ziv's fist career.

Minimum Purse Value Increased
TORONTO, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Palmer Wright, secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club, announced last night that the minimum purse value for overnight races will be increased to $10,000 when the jockey club opens its 1944 meeting at Woodbine Park next May. The minimum purse value last year was $800.

Knock Over E.A.C. Squad By Score 8-1

MARKING up their third successive win in six days, Canadian Athletic Club juniors skated through the E.A.C.'s for an 8-1 triumph in their scheduled Junior Hockey League game at 119 street rink on Saturday night. The win gave the Canucks a three-point lead over the second-place Clubmen in the race for premier honors.

Six of the goals for the winners were evenly split amongst Jim Fleming, Arnold Armstrong and Jim Slugg, the others going to Harold Payne and Harvey Green, but Ken Cox shared in four of them. Bill Ingram counted the singleton for the losers on a lone effort in the first period. Sammy (Sparky) Milner gave another grand display in the nets for the losers.

Canadians, maintaining a steady pressure against the Clubmen who never provided any really serious opposition excepting during the early part of the third session, moved into a 3-1 lead in the opening canto, counted three more goals in the middle frame and blanked their opponents again the final heat while collecting another pair for themselves.

Armstrong was the first to get in a real shot, but Milner saved. Pete Petaske tried out Alex Cavalli in the Canadian nets and Milner kicked out close-in shots from both Fleming and Cox.

Green gave last season's champions their first counter when he combined with Ken Cox just before the four-minute mark. The goal was the result of a fast break-away which caught the E.A.C.'s with only one defenceman—Bill Ingram—back, and Milner never had a chance on Green's blazing shot from a few feet out.

Clubmen had only one good scoring chance before the Canadians notched another, Jack Evans working in from the wing but Cavalli saved nicely.

Arnold Armstrong gave the Canadians a 2-0 lead, when he swung across in front of the goal and although checked hard managed to complete the play, the puck actually going in off a defender's stick in the resulting pile-up.

Armstrong raised the score to 3-0 at 10:29 when he hooked the puck from Petaske in front of the penalty box and went right through. Bill Ingram at the time was serving a penalty for hooking Armstrong.

Cavalli made a great save from Petaske's close in shot and Fleming missed the goal entirely when after going the length of the ice on a smart play with Bob Causgrove. He fired wide after drawing off the goalie.

Cox stopped hot ones from both Cyril Thomas and John Rypien.

Bill Ingram's goal at 18:29 culminated a rush from his own defence area, his back-hand shot from the side going in off Cavalli's arm.

Gerald Thomas on a play with Ingram and Joe Trofimuk got in early second period shots on the Canadian goal, but the Canucks started to roll again when Cyril Thomas got in close twice, the second on a relay from Armstrong, but Milner saved both.

Canadians went ahead 4-1 on Harold Payne's counter at 6:48 when he took the puck from Cox, who in turn had received it from Fleming on a three-way attack.

Milner made successive saves from Cox, Armstrong and Payne and Thomas and Fleming also had a close-in try before Jim Slugg boosted the total to 5-1 at 13:18 when Cox fed him a neat pass from behind the goal.

Slugg scored again three minutes later when he hook-checked the puck from Ingram at the side of the E.A.C. goal and deftly deposited it in the nets after evading Milner.

Canadians had a total of 18 shots on Milner in the middle period, while Cavalli handled four from the E.A.C.'s.

The Clubmen went to work with more zeal in the third and for several minutes held their own with the fast-travelling Canadians. From the half-way mark though the Canucks defence held tight and all of the E.A.C. attacks melted practically at the blue line.

Fleming scored twice, the first on a three-way affair with Cox and Thomas past the 15-minute mark and the next coming a couple of minutes later when he combined with Bernie O'Connor.

LINEUPS

Second period: 5—Canadians, Payne (Cox, Fleming), 6:48; 6—Canadians, Slugg (Cox), 13:18; 7—Canadians, Slugg, 16:32; Penalties: Cox, G. Thomas, Brown.

Third period: 8—Canadians, Fleming (Cox, G. Thomas), 15:10; 9—Canadians, Fleming (O'Connor), 17:42; Penalty: Boyco.

Dion Again Stands Out

Detroit Trounces Toronto In Two Week-End Contests

DETROIT, Jan. 17.—(CP)—For the second successive night, Detroit Red Wings rallied in the third period to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs, scoring three goals to win 4-1 in a National Hockey League game last night before 13,859 spectators, the season's largest crowd at Olympia Stadium.

Dalton (Nakina) Smith's first major league goal provided the winning margin.

Murray Armstrong, recently discharged from the Canadian army, tallied one and assisted in two others last night and scored a pair Saturday night as the Wings won 6-4 to pick up five points for his week-end's work.

The Wings, whose last five games have produced four victories and a tie in a bid for honors higher than their present fourth-place station, sent 25-year-old Conrod (Connie) Dion to the nets in a surprise move. This paid off however, in another victory for the five-foot five-inch goal-tender who hasn't lost in three games. He replaced veteran Normie Smith, Detroit's home goalie.

The only shot that got past Dion was Ted Kennedy's 15-footer in the second period that offset Adam Brown's first period score for Detroit.

Smith bagged his winning goal early in the third. To clinch it, Armstrong scored while Don Webster was serving time in the penalty box. Twelve second before the finish Brown got his second goal.

The victory was Detroit's fourth of the season against the second place Leafs, who have won one and tied two in the series.

RED WINGS RALLY TO WIN BY 6-4
TORONTO, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings streaked through a collapsing enemy defence Saturday for four third-period goals to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4 and strengthen their hold on the National Hockey League's fourth place.

The Leafs had built up a 4-2 margin with less than 10 minutes to play, and the 12,335 paid admissions were already counting upon a fourth straight victory for Toronto when Murray Armstrong jabbed a loose puck past Paul Bibeault from five feet out to slice the margin to 4-3.

Thirty-five seconds later Adam Brown tied the score in another goalmouth scrimmage. Then Howe came back almost directly off the next faceoff, cut across the Toronto rearguard and blasted a 35-foot shot from the left boards which caught the far corner.

Leafs pressed for the equalizer in the dying minutes but their going attack boomeranged for the sixth Detroit goal as Flash Hollett sprinted down alone, drew Bibeault out neatly and shoved the puck in an open net.

The refurbished Red Wings looked beaten when Armstrong touched off the four-goal explosion. Two goals by Jackie Hamilton and singles by Lorne Carr and Bob Davidson had offset earlier goals by Armstrong and Brown for Wings to give Leafs their two-goal margin and the have lifted them within five games of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The unusual television lights that cut through the tobacco smoke clouds blanketing Madison Square Garden's ring Friday night may serve as beacons guiding future boxing champions to fabulous wealth.

Television is ready to make millions of the cauliflower kings of the future. The big-money champions, particularly those in the heavyweight division, will participate in fights that will attract receipts far in excess to the rare million-dollar takes that have high-lighted the history of leather-tossing thus far.

Last night's 10-round bout between Bobby Ruffin and Tipply Larkin was televised to more than 20 hospitals in the New York area—to hospitals where most of the patients were service men. It was the first extensive television ever given a fight.

It also was relayed to a station in Philadelphia and dispensed to certain outlets there.

STRANGE LIGHTS

THE procedure was conducted without fanfare. We wouldn't have asked about it if the strange lights at the ringside hadn't offended our eyes. And no one was willing readily to answer our questions because apparently the radio and motion picture empires are preparing quietly for the post-war battle for television rights.

Promoter Mike Jacobs said, "Some of the boys are just making some experiments—but if it brings a bit of pleasure to the service men in the hospitals, it's all right with me."

But, after pinning a certain man in a corner, we understand now why Jacobs, with his fingers in many other financial pies, is stringing along with boxing during the war. He's counting on the rich rewards of post-war television.

READY TECHNICALLY

THE man we pinned in the corner was Anton M. Leader, a production director of the National Broadcasting Company, which did Friday night's experimental televising. We asked Leader "Is television technically ready to present a championship fight, as it goes on, to theatres or homes in cities throughout the United States?"

Leader replied, "Technically it is ready. The only difficulties we now see are concerned with political and financial competition of various organizations. When peace comes, and we can get the modernized equipment and the special wire cables between cities, and the technicians, we can televise a fight into theatres in almost every city and town in the country."

Will that make the champion fighters of the future men of such wealth that Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Babe Ruth, etc., will seem like pikers in comparison?

"Unquestionably it will," admitted Leader. "Unquestionably it will. Naturally they will be subject to heavy taxes; but they will be among the golden boys of our new America."

Moose Jaw Stops Flin Flon To Move Into Second Place

MOOSE JAW, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Veteran Bob Kennedy's goal with less than three minutes remaining broke a 2-2 tie and gave Moose Jaw victories a 3-2 win over Flin Flon Bombers in a Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League game here Saturday.

Pearce Airman Loses Feature Services Card

REGINA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Cpl. Jim Macquodale, of No. 39 Service Flying Training School, Swift Current, Sask., pounded out a four-round decision over Cpl. Kid Korduta, of No. 12 I.T.S., Pearce, Alta., in the feature event of an all-services fight card here Saturday night.

In one of the classic events of the bill, Tr. Max Spoon, of Dundurn army camp and New York Golden Gloves champion in 1939-40, took a three-round decision from Cpl. Frank Petroski, No. 19 S.F.T.S., Vulcan, Alta.

Other results included: Stoker S. Brewer, H.M.C.S. Tecumseh, Calgary, won a technical knockout over AC2 Toole, Regina, Lac. Bradshaw, No. 7, S.F.T.S., Macleod, Alta., took a decision from OS N. Connolly, H.M.C.S. Tecumseh, Calgary.

Tr. Teasdale, of Dundurn, kayoed LAC E. Stockdale, of 39 S.F.T.S., Swift Current, in the second round of their fight.

OS J. O'Grady, H.M.C.S. Tecumseh, Calgary, won by a decision over AC A. Friend, No. 32 S.F.T.S., Moose Jaw. A draw went to Sub Lt. B. Lynch, of the Tecumseh, and LAC B. Dickie, No. 8 bombing and gunnery school, Lethbridge.

LAC R. Keeley, No. 13 S.F.T.S., Chesham, Alta., won a decision over LAC R. Davies, No. 32 S.F.T.S., Moose Jaw.

Decisions were won by LAC L. Wolff, Chesham, over LAC R. Hall, Moose Jaw; LAC Hill, Chesham, over LAC E. Fridmore, No. 15 E.F.T.S., Regina; LAC H. Bain, No. 23 E.F.T.S., Assiniboia, Sask., over Sgt. W. Trenholm, No. 8 B and G school, Lethbridge.

Byron Nelson Increases Margin

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Reports are current that the National Hockey League is thinking of breaking off relations with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association but Red Dutton, N.H.L. managing director favors continuance of present relations.

Chief point of objection by some N.H.L. governors is the agreement to pay $500 to the C.A.H.A. for each Canadian amateur making good in the major league. The agreement was made originally with the idea amateur clubs should be repaid for money spent in developing youngsters and so have funds for further development.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson writes: "Those who would scrap the agreement, or scrap it, take the stand that every Canadian kid wants to play hockey, that the National League is his goal, and that the payments aren't necessary for the development would come along in the natural course of things as it always did."

Dutton takes the stand that $500 is cheap for a player making good in the big time and therefore is worth probably thousands of dollars in subsequent deals. And he believes it is to the N.H.L.'s advantage to spend money for development of such stars.

In an interview with Ferguson, Dutton mentioned Russ McQuarrie of Saskatoon, who promoted junior teams and developed two great players, Harry Watson and Charlie Rayner, both of whom played with Dutton's New York Americans. "Every year he'd lose $300 or $400 which he really couldn't afford," said Dutton. "Don't you think a fellow like that deserves a little help?"

Reports say the amateur-professional dispute was brought to a head by the case of Johnny Horeck, recently discharged from the army. It appears Horeck had been on New York Rangers negotiation list before he enlisted and, after discharge, Lester Patrick was prepared to offer the player a good contract. However, Eddie Shore of Buffalo Bisons obtained title right to Horeck in the deal which sent Bob Dill to Rangers. Then Horeck crossed them all up by locating in Ottawa and stating he wished to remain there and play for Commandos.

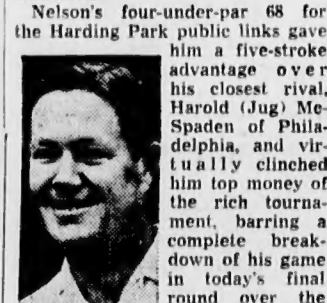

No matter how annoyed, however, the N.H.L. will not sever relations with the C.A.H.A. because it can't get along without co-operation with that body. The C.A.H.A. has international affiliations which will exert some measure of control over transfer of hockey players to Europe when hockey booms there after the war.

If the N.H.L. severed relations it would have to compete in player salaries not only with European rink owners but with the Canadian amateur clubs which actually are professional in everything but name.

And amateur hockey is just reaching the big money bracket. Already there have been cases where amateurs have refused big league offers because they were making more money as amateurs. A good job paying perhaps $2,500 a year plus a hockey bonus of $2,000 is not unusual for an amateur star. That isn't "hay" in the N.H.L. either—and on top of the gravy the amateur is establishing himself in business.

A rubber tree was found in Africa with a palm growing out of its trunk.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Burning up the course with a third successive below-par round, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., increased his lead over the field yesterday with a 54-hole total of 205 in the $10,000 San Francisco Victory open golf tournament.

Byron Nelson was a shot better than that of the former New York Yankee baseball player, Sam Byrd of Detroit.

Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif., who goes into the United States army Tuesday, took over fourth place with a 71 and total 212 while Art Bell, San Francisco and George Fazio, Pine Valley, N.J., shared fifth position with a total of 215.

After being well up among the leaders for the first two rounds, little Harry Cooper of Minneapolis hacked away some of his chances by taking a 76 which gave him a three round score of 217.

Sports . . . Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The talk about post-war planning in baseball is just a headache for one official of a local club, who moans: "We can't even plan for the present." . . . His complaint is the singular lack of co-operation by the men who should be the most concerned—the players. . . . For instance, Bobby Coombs, joined the Navy Dec. 29 but the Giants, who were bringing him up from Jersey City, haven't heard about it officially so he's still on their reserve list. . . . And only three Yankee players bothered to send Christmas cards to their ailing boss, Ed Barrow. . . . In case they're interested, Barrow thinks he'll be well enough to make daily visits to his office before long.

Stoke City Beats Aston Villa In Cup Qualifying Competition

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(CP Cable)—The biggest provincial football crowd of the season Saturday jammed transport routes to the Villa Park where the visiting Stoke City jumped into fourth place in the football league cup qualifying competition by defeating Aston Villa 2-0.

Featuring a day that had many postponements, the game was played before a gate of 30,000 with the winners fielding their star international, Stan Matthews, for the second time in three years. Matthews was held scoreless, but his brilliant dribbling set up the scoring plays.

Tom Lawton, Everton's crack leader, scored five goals as Everton swamped Crewe 6-2 and retained the cup lead. Everton has scored 27 goals against six in four games since the qualifying competition opened.

West Bromwich overwhelmed Walsall 7-1 and uncovered a 19-year-old amateur find in H. G. Ball who performed the hat trick. Blackpool edged out Southport 2-1 before 10,000 people and Bath blasted the cellar-dwelling Aberaman 5-0. Leicester beat Derby 1-0 and Liverpool downed Tranmere 5-1. Wolverhampton and Coventry drew 2-2.

In an international match Holland defeated Belgium 3-2.

The League South program was cut short by postponements. The leading Tottenham Hotspurs just managed to nip Southampton 3-2. Luton and Millwall drew 1-1.

Sensation of Scottish play was the 2-1 defeat of Glasgow Rangers by St. Mirren in a Southern League match. The Rangers retained a five-point lead, however, because Celtic, in second place, lost 2-1 to Albion. Dunbarton and Partick Thistle drew 2-2.

Dundee United, Northeastern circuit leaders, swamped Rangers 6-2.

Junior Hockey Game Tonight

Edmonton Athletic Club and H.M.C.S. Nonsuch will play a City Junior League game at 119 Street rink tonight commencing at 8:30. These teams met on Jan. 8 and the result was a 3-3 tie. A win for the Navy this evening will deadlock the two clubs in second place.

Port Arthur Cops Senior Game 10-7

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Port Arthur Shipyard won a goal-fest from Port William Canadian Car here Saturday night, defeating the Plane-builders 10-7 in the opening game of the Lakehead's Senior Hockey season.

Norm Larson and Peter Wywrot were the leading marksmen, Larson sniping four for the winners and Wywrot duplicating the performance for the Carmen. Norm Wright, with three, Bill McKenzie, with two, and Koivisto accounted for the remaining Shipyard goals. Fraser Coull, Don Eaton and Joe Gollat completed the Canadian Car scoring.

Engineers Win Out 4-3 In Second Interfac Start

ENGINEERS plotted out a 4-3 decision over the Arts-Ag-Com-Law combination on the Varsity rink on Saturday to gain an even break in their two games played so far in the University of Alberta Interfac Hockey League. They were beaten 6-3 by the Med-Dents in the opener on Friday.

The two teams played on even terms in the opening frame, but after the Combines had gone ahead on Taylor's goal in the second period, Engineers came back with three in a row and then held the losers to a singleton in the final.

John Collier, Taylor and Joe Fraser had an equal share in the goals for Arts-Ag-Com-Law, while Bill Dimock with two, Mickey Hijash and Desmons counted for the winners.

Collier, coach of the Combines, sent his team out in front just before two minutes had been played, but Dimock took a relay from Gordon Proctor five seconds before the period was over to even matters.

Taylor gave the Arts squad a lead in the second, but Desmons completed a three-way effort with Spence and Laurient, before Hijash

Two Edmonton Rinks Entered Calgary 'Spiel

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Fortieth annual bonspiel of the Alberta branch of the Royal Canadian Curling Club, scheduled to officially open at 9 o'clock this morning, drew the surprising entry of 64 rinks, including the most distant entry in history, that of Jimmy Linstead of Norman Wells Curling Club, N.W.T.

Bert Robertson and Frank Wolfe, are the Edmonton skips entered. Innisfail leads the outside clubs with four entries. The list is made up of 35 visiting rinks, 20 from the city and nine city service rinks.

Weather conditions are anything but promising for the 'spiel, but fortunately the event will be proceeded with on six sheets of artificial ice at the Arena, should six at the Glenora Club and four at the North Hill club be unplayable after the early morning draw.

Howard Palmer, who has Jack Lebeau at third and Claire Webb, leading, two members of his Dominion championship Brier rink, will be the favored skip. Gordon Haynes is replacing Art Gooder at second.

Bobby Leach, who successfully rode over Niagara Falls in a barrel, later slipped on an orange peel and broke his neck.

New Army Paper Rushed to Troops

By FOSTER BARCLAY

NAPLES, Italy, Jan. 17.—(CP)—First issue of "The Maple Leaf," first regular newspaper published in the field in this war by the Canadian Army, has rolled off the presses and been rushed to units of the Canadian Corps in Italy by aircraft and jeep.

The paper, the latest step to keep the troops abreast of the news of Canada, Britain and the central Mediterranean, consists of four pages of five columns each. It was begun as a weekly but when enough newsprint is available, it is expected to become a daily.

Since the Canadian 1st Division landed in Sicily last July, one of the major complaints of the Canadian forces has been the lack of news. It is hoped that the paper, under the supervision of the Canadian public relations unit of the central Mediterranean force, will go a long way towards meeting that need.

Rated Among Greatest Planes

Peter B. Masfield, British airplane technical expert, recently rated the de Havilland Mosquito, the North American Mustang, and the Consolidated Liberator as "the three most outstanding aircraft in the world today."

Writing in the aviation magazine "Flying," Mr. Masfield, personal adviser on civil aviation to Lord Beaverbrook, placed the Mosquito "among the galaxy of fine aircraft, combining speed with a shattering weight of fire in its fighter form, and range and bomb load in its bomber version."

In its own category, the Mosquito was awarded the unusually high ratings of 93.2 percent as a day and night reconnaissance bomber, 91.6 percent as a bomber, and 95.2 percent as a night intruder-fighter.

In his article, Mr. Masfield explained the method of choosing the different top planes and remarked that "no enemy types qualify."

The Mosquito is built on this continent by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited, in a plant situated outside the city of Toronto.

Air Power

Fuel Handicaps Jet-Propulsion

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

The main difficulty with the jet-propulsion airplanes just made public is the rapid rate at which it consumes fuel. Until that handicap is licked—as it surely will be in time—the new craft will have greater speed than the conventional airplane, but will be incapable of long sustained flights.

Its most obvious immediate use, therefore, should be for tasks that require high speeds for relatively brief periods of time. The job of home defence, as an interceptor plane that can rise rapidly and outflank attacking aircraft, is thus clearly cut out for the new plane in its present form.

But that does not by any means exhaust the possibilities of jet, rocket or other reactive propulsion engines. We can visualize a few of them as follows:

1. For a number of years the Germans have had at their disposal a catapult mechanism operated on the rocket principle for launching overloaded planes into the air. The reactive engine should enable planes to catapult themselves, so to speak. Once in the air, the jet can be cut off and the orthodox propeller propulsion used.

2. The same kind of flash performance will also give airplanes new tactical advantages in combat. It will enable them to release a sudden burst of speed to overtake an enemy craft that seeks to escape—or "jump on" the foe, as it were. Or, by the same token, it will make possible a sudden sprint to escape a more powerful adversary when it is not desired to accept combat.

3. Jet propulsion or any rocket type of power can be designed to work in reverse if necessary. High-speed planes so equipped will therefore be able to stop short in flight. This has great tactical value in support of surface warfare, because it would enable planes to operate in contested spaces where they cannot venture today.

4. Jet propulsion will facilitate the operation of airplanes from the deck of an aircraft carrier. Since these planes can virtually catapult themselves into the air, they will be able to get off with heavier loads and at greater speeds.

However these improvements will not materially change the limited tactical role of the aircraft carrier. The vessel will still remain very vulnerable and will still be small in comparison with land bases, to accommodate the large planes with a real wallop necessary for strategic bombing.

5. Rocket engines ultimately may be counted upon to give aircraft speeds in excess of the speed of sound. At those velocities the plane itself will undergo considerable structural revision. The shape of the wings will have to be altered, and devices for drawing in the wings as speed increases will be needed.

6. An extreme speeds the impact density of the air becomes so great that the plane in effect is moving almost through a compressible liquid, and the shape and size of the wings must be revised accordingly. Indeed, at some future time, when we have found fuels that

The resolution, which will be forwarded to the department of pensions and national health, was introduced by First Vice-President J. C. Macdonald, following a report by Secretary-Manager W. J. Williams of an investigation of cases of two casualties from overseas discharged from the army.

Both men served with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and were wounded in Sicily. One is a captain, severely wounded in the legs. The other, a private, was wounded in the head by a machine gun bullet.

PLACED ON ALLOWANCES

Both were placed on allowances of $44.40 a month. The captain, who is still in hospital, is having $30 a month deducted for hospital charges, leaving him $14.40 per month. It was said he has dependents.

The case of the private was described by Mr. Williams as:

"The most callous treatment of a soldier that has yet come to my attention."

He said the soldier, who is 28, was discharged on Jan. 7 last. "He is paralyzed and unable to speak and is now living in a single room 10 feet by 10 feet, with his aged mother. Along with the veterans' welfare officer and Mr. Victor Quench, M.P., I visited this man yesterday. If the citizens could see what we saw they would certainly protest to the high heavens," Mr. Williams declared.

THE QUESTION

In the good old days of the silent "flickers," theatre managers used to flash the request of "Ladies, please remove your hats!" on the screen two or three times during each show. There was usually a graphic illustration of a huge headpiece, blotting out the whole screen, just to emphasize the point. Now the old annoyance of feminine head attire "cheating" patrons in the row behind out of seeing the show, has become too prevalent again. The Edmonton Bulletin is informed. Do you think it time for theatre managers to resume the old practice?

THE ANSWERS

J. "RED" BALLANTYNE, truck driver: I have been praying for years that theatre-men would return to the old practice of requesting women to take off their hats. Despite improved seating arrangements the person directly behind one of these modern haystacks that passes for a hat, is directly behind the eight ball as far as the show is concerned. I am also in favor of some teeth in the "request." The "request" to remove hats should carry a proviso that failure to comply with same will result in a "request" by the usher to leave the theatre.

ALMA SMALL, secretary: I favor such a proposal 100 per cent. I recently asked a lady whose hat "covered" the entire screen if she would please take it off. She not only ignored my polite request but assumed an attitude of "How dare you."

AN AMERICAN SOLDIER: I certainly think the hat removal "request" should be renewed. For months I have been defrauded out of the price of admission by hats that cover even the corners of the screen. In these days of long lineups and packed theatres it is shameful that some women should be permitted to get away with such stuff.

Staging Route Role Growing In Importance

Increasingly important role of the Northwest Staging Route of the R.C.A.F., which has now become an operational group of Western Air Command, will result in appointment of a permanent representative of the route at Western Air Command, Vancouver, it was learned here Monday.

Sqdn. Ldr. G. W. Du Temple, who has been serving as the route's representative at No. 4 Training Command, Calgary for some time, likely will go to Vancouver as representative of the staging route.

Sqdn. Ldr. Du Temple was formerly commanding officer of the Watson Lake unit of the staging route. During the absence of Wing Cmdr. J. W. McFarlane, commanding officer of the route, Sqdn. Ldr. Du Temple has been acting C.O. Wing Cmdr. McFarlane recently accompanied Group Capt. Val Patriarche, newly-appointed commanding officer of the Northwest Staging Route, on a tour of the units.

The northwest Staging Route was, until recently, under the direction of the air officer commanding No. 4 Training Command at Calgary.

Wing Cmdr. McFarlane is leaving shortly for Jarvis, Ont., where he will take command of the large bombing and gunnery school there.

Plan Sell Permits At Regular Hours

Commencing Monday, liquor permits will be sold to applicants during regular liquor store hours, from 2 to 7 p.m., J. A. King, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, said today.

In addition, permits will be sold from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. daily, but no liquor will be sold during these hours. The liquor vendors' premises will close for one hour at 1 p.m., and re-open for a five-hour period at 2 p.m., during which time both permits and liquor will be sold.

Canadians Born in U.S. Still Need Border Cards

If you happen to be a Canadian born in the U.S.A. and are planning a visit to the states you will have to unravel a yard or so more red tape than would a fellow-Canadian born right here in Canada.

Sounds a trifle tedious, you observe. Perhaps it does, but it's just one of those annoying "technicalities" that crop up now and then to confound and confuse ordinary people.

Just about as mystified as anybody about the situation is Robert C. English, United States consular representative in Edmonton, who told of how the regulation works out.

Some months ago Washington decided to relax the regulations governing Canadian visitors to the U.S.A.

It was announced that Canadians would no longer need go to the trouble of getting border crossing cards when entering the States for visits up to 29 days. But the order was quite specific that this applied to Canadian citizens born in Canada only. Those Canadians born in countries making Canadian naturalization necessary, from the British Isles, Newfoundland and elsewhere, must still obtain border crossing cards or other documents as may be specified. As no mention is made specifically of Canadians born in the United States, all such must therefore continue to obtain border crossing cards before crossing the international boundary.

Noted Writer's Son in Air Force Here

AC. G. J. CLARK

Aircrafterman Gregory Joseph Clark, 18-year-old son of Gregory Clark, well-known feature writer of the Toronto Star who is covering the war in Italy for his newspaper, is stationed in Edmonton with the R.C.A.F. An elder brother, Lt. Murray Clark, is with the Canadian Army overseas. AC. G. J. Clark, who is pictured above with his father, was a student at Humber College, Toronto, before enlisting.

Menu Shows Troops Enjoyed Christmas Dinner in Italy

Leading Seaman A. F. Scheidecker, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Scheidecker, 9618 111 avenue, who has arrived in Edmonton on his first visit home in two years. On furlough, the young sailor has been stationed "somewhere in Canada" and was among those who escorted the Lady Nelson hospital ship into port. He enlisted in the navy four years ago and prior to his enlistment was active in basketball and other sports at the Spruce Avenue school.

The spirit of Christmas reached out into the far-flung Allied battle stations of the globe on Christmas Day when Canadian soldiers took a brief respite from the hardships of war and indulged in a day of feasting "just like home."

In Italy, according to a menu received by the wife of one of the men stationed at a headquarters platoon, the boys really "went to town" with stuffed roast turkey, Christmas pudding, mince pies and even champagne.

Feast your eyes on the succulent display that transformed a forward area mess hall into a home-like atmosphere:

MENU FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

Breakfast: Sliced oranges, cream and sugar; fried bacon; beans; toast; coffee; bread and butter, jam and marmalade.

Dinner: Champagne; soupe aux pois; stuffed roast turkey; mashed potatoes; creamed cauliflower; buttered peas and carrots; giblet gravy; Xmas pudding with custard sauce; Xmas cake; cookies and mince meat pies; tea, bread and butter.

Supper: Cold meats; fried potatoes; pickles; mince pies; cake and cookies; fruit and nuts; tea, bread and butter.

The menu was multigraphed in purple ink on white bond paper, 11 by 14 inches and splashed with wreaths and festive symbols in red ink.

Along with the menu, the young soldier sent his wife a copy of "Canada's Front Line Newspaper—The Red Patch—Christmas Edition."

In spite of the difficulties, according to the slogan on Page 2 of the edition, "the impossible can be done" and this issue is No. 8 of Volume 2 of a publication issued weekly by permission of the general-officer-commanding the First Canadian Division Overseas, Central Mediterranean Force.

FOUR-PAGE PAPER

The Red Patch is a four-page paper, printed in red and green inks and copiously illustrated with pictures and drawings.

It contains news from home such as "E. P. Hogg was re-elected mayor of Red Deer, Alberta." The minister of pensions and health said that with the increase of casualties returning from overseas, 8,000 military beds are now in use and another 8,000 are being prepared in various military hospitals as well as the latest hockey standings of Canadian and American teams.

Both the menu and the paper are outstanding examples of the democratic way of life which the army is fighting to maintain, and also of the high level of morale of armed forces.

Lumber Industry Requires Workers

There are still some men in the rural districts who can be spared from work on the farms for the next three months to accept employment in the lumbering industry, according to A. O. MacLachlan, Edmonton selective service officer, who has just returned from a tour of various country points.

Mr. MacLachlan accompanied representatives of the National Film Board who showed moving pictures of an informative nature in the communities, and attempted to interest more farmers in employment in the lumbering camps.

The shortage of workers in the lumber camps is still of an emergency nature and hundreds more are needed to complete operations Mr. MacLachlan said.

Some of the centres visited on the tour were: Mundare, Manville, Minburn, Royal Park, Padola and Innisfree.

Fire in Home

Fire in a home at 12102 97 street did considerable damage to the premises about 2:23 p.m. Sunday. Halls 5 and 7 responded, using one line of hose. Two false alarms were turned in early Sunday morning, a report showed.

The Royal Canadian Navy has increased since the outbreak of war from 15 ships to more than 600.

Eight Cases On Docket at Court Opening

With only eight cases on the docket, January sitting of supreme criminal court opened Monday before Chief Justice W. C. Ives.

Following arraignment of accused the session was adjourned until Thursday, Jan. 27, because Crown Prosecutor J. W. McClung, K.C., must attend the current sittings of the Alberta appeal court, that also opened Monday.

Kenneth McCracken, facing charges of breaking and entering, theft of a car and assault, pleaded guilty to all charges, and was remanded until Jan. 27 for sentence.

James Van Alkin, Joseph Burke and Joseph Wyzub, facing conspiracy charges in connection with importing liquor from Manitoba, entered pleas of not guilty and elected for trial by judge and jury. Trial was set for Jan. 31.

Fred Pookkey, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and on the suggestion of Chief Justice Ives his case may be disposed of "after hours" on Wednesday.

Plea of not guilty to carnal knowledge was made by John Wirach and trial was also set for Jan. 27.

FAILS TO APPEAR

C. J. Popowich, charged with manslaughter, failed to appear and the crown asked that bail be estimated. Police will investigate further before the application is dealt with.

Howard M. Cowden pleaded not guilty to a charge of rape and his case was set over until end of the session.

Plea of not guilty was made by Rose Hnalsyn to a charge of theft, and accused elected for a non-jury trial.

Air Line Officials Are City Visitors

T. H. Martin, Montreal, traffic manager of Canadian National Express and Trans-Canada Air Lines Express, and B. A. Latta, Winnipeg, general express superintendent of both express lines, are guests at the Macdonald hotel.

On a routine trip to the Pacific coast, the two officials report express traffic as being very heavy. "Air express is growing by leaps and bounds, and we are experiencing a heavy volume of business," Mr. Martin stated on arrival.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

Man Weds Older Woman Only for Her Money

Deadly Barrier of Shame Always Arises Between Husband and Wife When Such Situations Exist; Divorce Is Final Outcome

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband, who died ten years ago, left me very wealthy. I am a woman of 55. Recently I met a man who is 30 years old and he tells me that he is in love with me and wants to marry me. I love him, too, but am dubious about marrying him because he is of a different religion. Do you think I should marry this man? Please advise me as I am very

PUZZLED.

ANSWER: There is nothing in your case to be puzzled about. You don't need to go to any astrologer or crystal-gazer or consult any fortune-teller to find out how such a marriage as you are contemplating will turn out. You have only to look around your own circle of friends to see the shamed, heart-broken, cheated, rich, old women who have bought themselves young husbands and who have been left bankrupt in money and happiness.

Try to face your problem with a little good, hard, horse sense. Instead of indulging in wishful thinking, try to face facts as you know them are. You know that no man of 30 ever falls in love with a woman almost old enough to be his grandmother. No man ever marries a woman 25 years older than he is except for her money. Between a young man and an aging woman there is nothing in common. They have no basis on which they can erect a house of happiness.

To begin with, there will be between you the most deadly barrier in the world, and that is shame. You will be ashamed of him because you will be bound to have a contempt for a man who will sell his youth, his independence, his ambitions, everything that makes a man a man, rather than work. You will be ashamed of him because you know the absolute loathing in which other men hold a young man who is nothing but a parasite of an old woman, who runs her errands, takes her pet dog out to walk for the sake of his board and clothes and such tips as she sees fit to hand out to him.

And he will be ashamed of you because even those who do not sneer at him openly will mistake you for his mother, and because there is no spectacle more ridiculous than that of an old woman and a young man going out together, no matter whether he is her husband or her gigolo.

Furthermore, if you marry this boy, you will lose the respect of all who know you. Your friends will drop away from you because they will not want to receive your husband, and because they will feel that you are not the woman they thought you were, or else you would not have done such a fool thing. You will be a lonely woman, for you will not fit into the crowd whose only use for you will be paying the bills for their amusement. And you will be torn with a thousand jealousies of every young girl whose skin, as "Mr. Skeffington" said, is light instead of wrinkled like yours. And you will find that the old woman who tries to keep herself young to go with a young husband and to keep him amused has set herself the hardest job on earth.

Don't do it, lady. Don't use your good husband's money to buy yourself a boy husband. It is too poor an investment.

WANTS WORK

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a woman of 23 with a husband and two children, all of whom I love dearly. My problem is this: I was a working girl before my marriage and my fingers just ache to get back on a key board. I mean I want to do some work outside of my home, but my husband will not agree to it. He says I should be satisfied to keep house and take care of my children. But I'm not.

So many mothers are working nowadays in defence plants and what not, and the government is calling for more women. I don't feel that I would be neglecting my children if I took a job, as we live in a crowded district and they would be well taken care of in a nursery school. Don't you think my husband should consent to let me take a job?

OFFICE MOTHER.

ANSWER: I think your husband is right in contending that your job is in the home and in taking care of the two little children whom you have brought into the world. That is the most important work that you can perform. Modern inventive genius has devised a lot of useful household gadgets, but it has never made anything that was a substitute for a mother.

When you say that your children would be as well taken care of in a nursery school as they would be by you, you either rate yourself as a very poor mother, or else you are trying to drag your conscience by making yourself believe what you want to believe. And that is no reflection on the nursery school or any of the child centres that are being established for the children of working mothers.

It is just that it is one of the inexorable laws of nature that children cannot be taken care of en masse as well as they can individually, and that no other person on earth can have the patience, the love, the intuition that a mother has, and that makes even the most stupid mother give to her child something that the most scientifically trained child-specialist cannot give.

So from every ethical standpoint you should stay at home and do the job you wished on yourself—making a home for your husband and children and watching over your little ones, no matter how much you long to be out where there is excitement and noise and something doing every minute.

Your husband has all the argument on his side, but it is folly to reason with a woman who has the working-outside-of-your-home-bee in her bonnet. The only thing to do is to let her go and try it and get the career idea off her chest.

One of the boys overseas sent me today's hand. Quick thinking on his part gave him an overbribe on his doubled contract. West I would be rather light—at least, I would not double an American soldier when he bids four hearts as freely as this one did.

South had to make a discard on the deuce of diamonds. Some players might discard a spade, but not this one. He let go the seven of clubs, cashed the ace and king of clubs, then led a small heart. West won with the ace and returned another diamond. South trumped this, entered dummy with a heart, ruffed the third club, returned to dummy with a heart and discarded the deuce of spades on the good club—thus losing only two tricks.

America's Card Authority

The American Contract Bridge League is dedicated to underprivileged children. Card parties are of great assistance to any organization in raising funds for charities, and for the second year I have accepted the chairmanship of the card committee of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Last year even the soldier boys in the war zones participated in card parties for the benefit of this worthy cause.

Gideon Planish

By Sinclair Lewis

THE STORY: As Dean of Kinnikinnick College in 1928, Gideon Planish is well-esteemed, in demand as a public speaker, and referred to as a "leader of humanitarians." His wife, Peony, is attractive, extravagant and ambitious. Through her manoeuvring, the Dean becomes chairman of the County Censorship Board. He successfully attacks "The Tattooed Countess," which he has never read, and inadvertently increases the business of the book-seller, Mr. Rood.

XII

THE Garfield County Censorship Board had gone on attacking and advertising good books, and Mr. Rood had, with amazement at himself, taken to reading, and had established the first adequate book shop in the county. The name of Chairman Planish had been advertised almost as loudly as the books. Though the whole State there began to slide a feeling that he was a very sound man, though nobody except Peony was sure what he was sound at, and he was appointed a member of the Legislative Advisory Electrification and Creative Planning Committee.

Suddenly he was dashing to Ottumwa, to Mason City, to Sioux City, to Muscatine, over a period of two months; his name was in the newspapers daily—on page 7; he took Peony to public dinners of more than 300 persons, with speeches; and at the end of the meritorious crusade, the Planishes were $400 in debt, and Whipple Jackson sent a cheque to cover half the amount, and with it Peony bought a rock-crystal lamp and 500 shares in a diamond mine.

Dean Planish had been honored by his first invitation to become a "national director" of a great organization with its office in New York: The Sympathizers with the Pacific Purposes of the New Democratic Turkey. He was assured that they desired only the use of his distinguished name, and he need give no time nor money unless he was eager to.

He wasn't. He was often to have the experience, as warming to the stomach as hot toddy, of seeing his name on organizational stationery. But this was his first drink. In the upper right-hand corner of the letter were the National Officers, who included three prominent clergymen, a Chicago corporation lawyer, and a treasurer who was the 14th vice-president of the Sixteenth National Bank of Manhattan.

Beneath the list of officers was the item, "Constance Kelly, Executive Director," in letters so modest that the Planishes, amateurs in the organizational world, did not notice it. They were interested in the left-hand side of the stationery where, among the 48 directors, appeared:

Iowa
Gideon Planish, Ph.D.
Dean, Kinnikinnick College.

The news of this honor appeared in the Iowa newspapers, and the Dean received invitations to become a director of two other national organizations, and to contribute to 63 of them. He accepted the first two.

His many honors had now started the Dean on a meaty career of oratory and public enlightenment. The invitations to speak were coming in, two a day, three a day, and Peony took charge.

"Gideon, cash in, you've been doing it this splendid free, and it's a chance to cash in. We'll pay up the old $500 debt in jing time, and I can get me a real evening dress that tinkles. You let me answer these bids. I'm going to stick 'em 25 and 50 bucks apiece, and up to 75, with travelling expenses."

"Sure. Go ahead and soak 'em. I just never had the nerve."

"Listen. I might pick out a regular topic for you and advertise it a little—mention it in all my letters."

"Ausgezeichnet! Peony! Which do you think would draw more—a lecture maintaining that the Post War Generation are okay, and will get over it, or just the opposite—'a message that they're a gang of cuckeyed bellows and haloots'?"

"Oh, give 'em the young-generation-going-to-hell number. Nobody wants to pay their good dough to hear that the kids are simply human beings."

As the Allied ground forces were scoring their successes, 120 navy and marine torpedo planes, dive bombers and fighters, battled their way into Simpson Harbor at Rabaul in daylight and scored direct hits on seven cargo ships, a light cruiser and one destroyer.

The marines who took Hill 660 Friday against strongly-entrenched Japanese troops, advanced down the eastern slopes Saturday, to break the anchor of the enemy defence line and open the way for a final drive on the enemy's Borgen Bay positions.

Dean Planish was speaking this evening at the joint dinner of the Daughters of Pioneers, and of the Upsala Bach Society, at New Ipswich, 60 miles from Kinnikinnick.

He was not one of your nervous lecturers who spoke at their apple-pear-cream-cheese salad, who shakily fill up on coffee, and look glassily at the ladies to left and right. Gideon Planish stood steadily, and he thought very well of the Surplus Ice Cream, while to Mrs. Wigglesman, the chairwoman on his right, he was saying, Yes, he did think the movies were a pernicious influence on the young. After that he said to the lady on his left that he, he did think the movies stimulated the imaginations and slicked up the manners of the young. He was not jumpy even when Mrs. Wigglesman introduced him. He rose, put on his eye-glasses with a flourish, and sailed his plane steadily into the trade-winds of intellectuality.

"Madame Chairman, Right Reverend Sir, ladies and friends, it is altogether fitting for the future that the descendants of the Yankees, my own stern but noble forbears, and the sons and daughters of the great Swedish race should thus have met together, and that I should endeavor to address you on the ever-burning topic of Today Youth, for in what have these titan races better united than in their emphasis on the scrupulous rearing of our children?"

Sixty-two minutes later, he made his landing, a little dazed now, and they yelled and hammered the tables. He enjoyed that, but it did not keep him from getting down to the real climax.

The first rule of all professional lecturers, whether inspirational, comic or travel, is to get your cheque before you leave the hall, for otherwise, in the spell of your wizardry, they might forget to send it on to you. So after he had shaken hands with 47 ladies and five men, he turned merrily to Mrs. Wigglesman and said, as though it were just a little joke between them, "I think I can save your committee a whole postage stamp if I take my cheque along with me!"

Mrs. Wigglesman looked shocked, but before he went down to shrug himself into his dogskin overcoat, he had the cheque tucked into his billfold.

He was weary now. He drove back to Kinnikinnick in so still a paralysis that he noted only that it had started to snow, and that he must see if he couldn't find a not too expensive snakeskin belt for Peony.

She was asleep on the new chintz-covered chaise longue when he came in, but she jumped up and kissed him.

"Were you wonderful?" I got some hot beef-tea waiting for you. Did you get your cheque?" she said.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 17.—Allied forces, stepping up their offensive, captured key Japanese points on New Britain and New Guinea and pounded Rabaul, the enemy's main southwest Pacific base, with a crushing air attack, it was announced today.

U.S. marine, climaxing a bitter seven-day struggle, seized Hill 660, a vital strategic point on the Borgen Bay front of western New Britain. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué said, while Australian troops, captured 516, last major Japanese base on the Huon peninsula of New Guinea.

The marines who took Hill 660 Friday against strongly-entrenched Japanese troops, advanced down the eastern slopes Saturday, to break the anchor of the enemy defence line and open the way for a final drive on the enemy's Borgen Bay positions.

General Vokes Commands Unit On Italo Front

ALGIERS, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, 39, of Winnipeg and Ottawa, Canada's youngest general, is in command of a Canadian division in Italy, it was officially disclosed yesterday.

Vokes, a huge raw-boned man more than six feet tall, commanded the 1st Infantry brigade of the Canadian 1st Division in Sicily where he won the D.S.O. He had under him in that brigade the Loyal Edmonton regiment, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, a Vancouver unit and the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, a permanent force unit.

Vokes took over the divisional command after the invasion of the mainland had begun.

RECENT PROMOTION
His promotion from Brigadier to Acting Major-General and the command of an infantry division was announced Nov. 5 and it was taken for granted then he would command the 1st Division, replacing Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds of Kingston, Ont., who was appointed at the same time to command an armored division.

Commanding that western infantry brigade in Sicily, Vokes did a magnificent job and his brigade saw the heaviest fighting of any Canadian formation. At Palazzo Armerina, Leonforte, Nisoria and Agrig, the westerners fought splendidly under Vokes who directed the fighting in the thick of battle and always was up forward encouraging the men and their commanders.

PERSONAL COURAGE
On several occasions, notably during the bloody, three-day battle for the Nazi stronghold of Leonforte, taken July 22 when the Pats stormed into the town to relieve a group of Loyal Edmontoners, he showed great personal courage under fire.

For that exploit, perhaps more than any other, he was awarded the D.S.O.

Vokes is admired by his men because he is a rough, outspoken soldier who doesn't mince words and he can be as tough as they come.

Bulgaria Recalls Reserve Officers
LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Sofia radio yesterday called on all reserve officers of the Bulgarian army up to the age of 60 to rejoin the colors immediately, a Reuters news agency dispatch from Ankara reported.

Gets Promotion
OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Defence headquarters last night announced promotion to rank of Brigadier of Lt.-Col. Daniel Charles Spry, 30, of Halifax. Brig. Spry, one of the youngest officers of that rank in the Canadian Army, was born in Winnipeg, member of a family long connected with Canada's armed forces.

Swedish Vessel Torpedoed, Lost
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(CP)—The American Swedish News Exchange announced Saturday the 1,405-ton Swedish steamship Solstad had been torpedoed and lost. Three crewmen were killed and two were reported missing. No location of the sinking was given.

Arrest Woman In Connection Homicide Case
STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The woman is Irene Thomas, Edmonton. Previously arrested was her companion, Charles Stack, Edmonton. Both are charged with homicide.

Stack was said to have been in connection with the dead man the previous evening. When he and the woman saw the burning auto, and the man inside it, the former ran two blocks to telephone the police.

Stack and the woman both told police they were waiting for a taxi that had been ordered when they saw the burning auto.

Charge of homicide by omission was read to the woman in the court of Magistrate A. J. Miller, K.C., Monday morning, and the case was immediately remanded until Friday. Another charge, that of vagrancy, laid against her last Saturday, was previously adjourned to Friday of this week. The charge of homicide against Stack was adjourned to the same day, on Saturday last.

While police investigations are continuing, the inquest was to open Monday at 3 p.m., for identification purposes only, at the Howard & McBride funeral home. Date of the inquest will be announced later.

Members of the jury have been chosen, said coroner's officer William McDonald. They are R. J. Talbot, John Hays, Francis LeGassick, Francis Taylor, J. W. Parks and Allan Whelstone.

"Big 3" May Share In Policing Reich
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Army and Navy Joint Staff Saturday suggested was made at the Tehran conference that Russia, Great Britain and the United States each garrison one-third of Germany in the period of military control following the defeat of the Reich.

The unofficial service publication did not say what disposition was made of the suggestion nor what of the three leaders at the conference—Marshal Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt—proposed it.

The journal connected its report with a reference in President Roosevelt's recent address in which he said force would be used "if necessary" to keep peace in the post-war world.

Remove Records
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—All Rumanian ministries have started moving their records from Bucharest in fear of Soviet columns driving toward the country, the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said in an article reported to the United States office of war information Saturday night.

Calgarians In Recital On Saturday

Resuming regular meetings after the long Christmas-New Year's vacation, the Women's Musical Club heard a two-piano recital at the Masonic Temple Saturday afternoon by Mary Hughes and Marjorie Birch, of Calgary.

Although four-hand playing has existed since the days of John Christian Bach and Mozart—the first published piece for four hands was written by J. C. Bach — two piano, four-hand recitals have become popular the world over only recently, and now there are many two piano teams heard all the way from elementary studio recitals to the great concert halls.

Outside of the duos who have come in the Celebrity Series, there has been no more talented team heard here than Misses Hughes and Birch. The two young women form an excellent team and in two piano playing, teamwork is a vital, fundamental to success.

They were indeed two minds with but a single thought, and that thought was to submerge their individualities and accomplishments, and fuse them into a cohesive, unified whole to present the finest performance possible.

TECHNICALLY CAPABLE

Both are capable technically, although they have not yet reached the point when technical difficulties are no longer a consideration and undivided attention may be given to interpretation. The solo and accompanimental passages were transferred effortlessly and smoothly.

The first group included the Handel-Esdaile Arrival of the Queen of Sheba; the Bach-Howe Sheep May Safely Graze and Mozart's Sonata in D Major. The last of the group was especially well done and was suited admirably to the interpretive faculties of the duo.

Chopin's Rondo in C Major opus 73, generally speaking, was played with no little polish and finesse although there were some florid passages that were not as smoothly executed as one might wish.

The last group included the Polka from Weinberger's opera "Schwanda"; Arthur Benjamin's Jamaican Rumba and an arrangement of The Blue Danube waltz.

BEST OF GROUP

Of these three, the Benjamin work was the best done. It was a model of clarity, balance and rhythmic precision. The Weinberger number, in the lighter and more graceful portions, lacked the delicacy of touch required, but in the heavier moments was unusually well done. The same applies to The Blue Danube. The lilting rubato and accentuation which are salient features in the performance of Viennese waltzes were not always present, while in some cases there was an over-emphasis on the chording. However, on the whole, the young Calgarians are splendid artists. They met with a cordial, enthusiastic welcome, to the extent that the "no encore" rule of the club, had to be temporarily suspended to allow them to play an extra number. —J.O.

Minute Make-Ups

Have the courage to use cosmetics to enhance your good looks or to make you good looking. Dramatize your eyes by using eyeshadow to deepen the color. Mascara to fringe the lashes. Use pencil to accent the too-thin eyebrows, lipstick to deepen your mouth. Cosmetics are for you to use wisely and well!

THEY DON'T FLY LIGHT!

Women's Air Force Service pilots need a good deal of equipment for the long trips that often lie ahead of them delivering planes from aircraft plants to U.S. and R.C.A.F. training bases. Here are Waspas Doris Manuel, left, New York City, and "Ginger" Disbrow, Schenectady, N.Y., ready to enter new training planes at Fleet Aircraft, Fort Erie, Ont., for the take-off. They return by airliner or, failing accommodation, on trains or buses.

Canadian Nursing Sisters Here And Overseas Highly Esteemed

By MARGARET ECKER
SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 17.—(C.P.)—Canadian nursing sisters here and overseas are carrying on the torch flung by Florence Nightingale — and the Canadian men in uniform are carrying a torch for the nurses.

Ask any man back from the front line with his battle scars. He'll tell you the thrill of a lifetime after the dirt and grime of an Italian trench was the cleanliness of a Canadian hospital and the sweetness of Canadian nurses.

In England the boys feel the same way. In this bias Canadian general hospital, men of both army and the air force smile when a nursing sister bustles by with a grin and a joke for each of her patients.

As Capt. R. C. Rider of London, Ont., in one operating room, put wet plaster for a cast on the legs of Pte. Jack Haigh, caught by a hand grenade in July, Ella Holfield of Dufur, Sask., stood by, Kathleen Laird of Pilot Mound, Man., cleaned an operating room where one had just taken place.

Nursing Sisters and Canadian Red Cross workers were up to their ears in rehabilitation work in the physiotherapy ward.

Holy Trinity Church Choir Holds Election
The Rev. W. M. Nainby acted as chairman at the annual meeting of Holy Trinity church choir recently. Reports showed a successful year.

The following members were elected to office: Mrs. G. Johnson, past president; Mrs. E. Smalian, president; Mrs. E. de Laroque, vice-president; Miss M. Smalian, secretary; T. Walton, treasurer; A. Saunders, librarian; Miss H. Bunkell and Miss J. Cowley, assistant librarians; Mrs. T. Middleton, mistress of robes; Miss I. Ellis, sick visitor; Miss V. Hill-Male, T. Walton, registrars; L. R. Bettis, auditor; and Mrs. T. Middleton, choirmaster's secretary.

ver was using a pulley muscle-strengthening to recover from a fractured pelvis. Part of the rehabilitation job of the war is giving the men jobs for their hands while their bodies heal. While Cpl. Frank Priest of Calgary recovered from a broken leg he made hook rugs for his wife and his mother and was then working on a toy elephant for his daughter.

100 Attend Church Event

Non-active members of Holy Trinity church held a social evening in the church on Friday, when their guests were the members of the various organizations of the church. One hundred attended.

The tea table was arranged with bowls of varied colored chrysanthemums, and tall tapers.

Mrs. T. W. Bull was convener, assisted by Mrs. H. B. Jamieson, Mrs. T. W. Dalkin, Mrs. J. W. Wark, Mrs. A. Smith, Miss Mae Young.

Pouring tea were Mrs. H. Tye, Mrs. A. H. Templeton, Mrs. H. Pettit, Mrs. W. L. Hammett. Members of the Junior choir assisted in serving. They were Miss Kathleen Wark, Miss Betty Reynolds, Miss D. Smith, Miss Muriel Jamieson, and Miss Diane Jamieson.

The Rev. W. M. Nainby was chairman, and Mr. T. W. Bull was in charge of the entertainment.

Augustus Chapter Meets for January

At the January meeting of the Fort August chapter I.O.D.E., the war emergency convener reported that a parcel of knitted goods had been sent to Montreal for the Merchant Marine, and Christmas Cheer was sent to a needy family.

Donations were made to the following funds: endowment, tobacco, sailors and minersweepers, prisoners-of-war, Lady Reading, Milk-for-Britain and the Navy Mothers' club.

Judicial Sale of Farm Property by Tender
Pursuant to an order of Honourable Mr. Justice O'Connor of the Supreme Court of Alberta, and of certain directions for sale, sealed tenders will be received for the purchase of the following parcel of farm property, situated 5 miles from Newbrook, Alberta, to be sold in one parcel:
The North East quarter of Section Fourteen (14), in Township Sixty-two (62), Range Twenty (20), West of the Fourth Meridian in the said Province of Alberta, containing One Hundred and Sixty (160) acres more or less; subject to the conditions and reservations contained in the original grant from the Crown or in the existing Certificate of Title thereto, and subject to all taxes, rates and assessments imposed thereon, subsequent to the 31st day of December, 1942.

The property consists of 160 acres, 75 acres under cultivation, 85 acres waste land, 45 acres brush land and 5 acres broom grass. The soil is a clay loam 4 to 5 inches deep with a clay subsoil. The nearest school is at Newbrook—3 miles away. The buildings consist of: 1.10-acre stable 20x30; 1 Pig Pen. The buildings are in a poor state of repair. There is a good water supply. The land is all fenced with barbed wire fencing.
The sale will be subject to an upset price of $14,400.
Tenders must be enclosed in sealed envelopes marked, "Tender for Canada Permanent Mortgage Corp. vs. Andy John Mannah, et al. 200 Families Join West End Y.M.C.A.
The Mountglen Community Y.M.C.A., in a three-day canvass last week, enrolled 200 family memberships and announced Monday that the membership drive has been extended to Jan. 21 in view of the great interest on the part of residents and the number of families not yet contacted.
Ralph Young, "Y" secretary, said that boys' activities are scheduled to begin Tuesday, Jan. 18, while the program for girls will be announced in the near future. Activities will be divided into age groups ranging from nine to 11, 12 to 13, and 14 to 15.
Registration cards were distributed in the schools Monday for boys and girls whose families have memberships to register for participation in activities as they are launched.
Miles Palmer, general chairman of the membership campaign, urged families interested but not covered in the canvass, to contact either Mr. Young at the downtown Y.M.C.A. or any of the following team captains: D. G. McIntosh, 124 and 123 streets; A. B. McKim, 124 street; S. O. Ewing, 125 street; J. Moar, 126 street; and A. W. Douglas, 127 street.
Sponsored by the Home and School Association and the Y.M.C.A., the Mountglen Community Y.M.C.A. follows the principle of no restriction as to race, creed or color.
There will be another meeting in the Westglen School Library, Friday night, Jan. 21, at which time further reports will be made on the house-to-house membership campaign.

Man Is Injured By Hit, Run Car
South Side police were searching over the week-end for a hit-and-run driver who struck and injured Jack Horner, 9324 93 street, as he walked on the west side of 91 street at 93 avenue, about 9 p.m. Saturday. The autoist did not stop, authorities were told by several persons who said they had witnessed the accident.
Taken to University hospital in a taxi, Horner's injuries were found to be not serious, but he was detained overnight.
Investigations are continuing.

Legion Studies Plan to Expand Memorial Hall

Extensions to the Memorial Hall, estimated to cost from $80,000 to $100,000, to keep pace with swift expansion of membership, will be studied by the 1944 executive of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion.

An outline of tentative plans that have been drawn up was given at the regular monthly meeting of the branch Sunday by Walter R. McLaren, M.M., chairman of the house committee.

The plans would entail extension of the present premises 30 feet on both the east and west sides of the building. On the west side there would be a new canteen at ground level, permitting extension of the billiard room and other recreational facilities, downstairs.

BOWLING ALLEY
A bowling alley would be put in at the east side. The lounge room would be enlarged and the dining room extended. There would also be a card room in the basement.

An addition to the front, of two storeys, with a frontage of 160 feet, would provide new office and club rooms and rooms for meetings.

In outlining the plans for extension, Mr. McLaren said:
"As the present building was erected as a memorial to those who served in the last war the proposed additions would, in my opinion, serve as a fitting memorial to those serving in the present war."

The proposals will, of course, be considered by the new executive, Mr. McLaren added.
Annual report of the finance committee, given by committee chairman J. McLean, revealed the branch to be in a healthy fiscal condition.

$31,000 IN BONDS
The branch has purchased Victory Bonds having a total value of $31,000 which, with the addition of the net operating profit for the year, placed the liquid assets at Jan. 1 at $38,348.65.

A detailed report by the auditor was read to the meeting.
Total membership of branch at the year's end stood at 1,455, the report of membership committee chairman Sidney Bowcott revealed. This is the highest in the history of the Legion in Edmonton. One year ago membership was well below 1,000.

Reports on the year's activities were given by other committee heads, with President H. E. Tanner also reading a review of the year's activities.

Give Aussie Flag To Service Club
As a symbol of appreciation of the excellent work of the United War Services Club in Edmonton, a large Australian flag was presented to Mrs. F. Wyatt, president of the club, at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night.

The flag was presented by LAC. Ken Palmer of Sydney, Australia, on behalf of the Imperial League of Australia, an organization of fathers of Australian airmen who have been stationed at Edmonton during the war.

The brief ceremony was viewed by more than 400 persons during the intermission period of the regular Saturday night service dance at the "Y." Fifty Australian servicemen from No. 3 "M" depot and No. 2 A.O.S. attended.

Mrs. M. Miller, supervisor of hostesses at the Y.M.C.A., read the letter of appreciation from the Australian veteran club. Other officials attending were Mrs. J. H. Morris, head of the "Y" information bureau and Miss Mabel Stitt.

Wheat, Rye Down On Chicago Mart

CHICAGO, Jan. 17. (CP)—Wheat and rye were down about a cent at times today in a grain market again characterized by lack of demand. Reports of easiness in the cash wheat trade at both Kansas City and Minneapolis, with prices quoted below ceilings on futures, kept wheat, unsettled the future market.

Some of the selling in wheat was attributed to hedging. Purchases of about 230,000 bushels of corn on a "hoariver" basis from the country, indicating an expanded movement of that grain, caused some selling of other feed grains. The trade heard a mild revival of "early peace" in Europe talk, but it was accepted with skepticism.

At the close wheat was 1/4-1/2 lower, rye was down 1/4-1/2, and barley was 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, May 1.20 1/2, July 1.19 1/2, Sept. 1.18 1/2, Dec. 1.17 1/2.

Winnipeg Rye Trade Erratic
WINNIPEG, Jan. 17. (CP)—Rye trading was erratic today on the Winnipeg grain exchange and for most of the session prices were under Saturday's closing levels.

Early selling by locals and commission houses eased premiums as much as two cents but buying in later dealings erased some of the deficits.

Weakness in Chicago grains also influenced the trend here.
Futures closed 3/4 to 1/2 cent lower with May at $1.24 1/2, and July $1.23 1/2. Neutrals were reported enquiring for Canadian wheat but no business was confirmed.

Appeal Court Will Hear 18 Cases in City

There were 18 cases, 13 being appeals from criminal convictions, to be reviewed by the Alberta appeal court at a sitting that opened in the court house here Monday.

The full court of five justices, presided over by Chief Justice Horace Harvey, was on the bench. Other members of the court are Justices H. W. Lunney, Frank Ford, A. F. Ewing and W. R. Howson.

An important criminal appeal is that of Sam and George Desjarlais, brothers under sentence of death for murder in the Lac La Biche district, north of Edmonton.

Two cases were dealt with Monday morning.
Appeal of Jack Zimmerman from a conviction for stealing tools before Magistrate T. P. Bell of Evansburg on May 1, 1943, was granted in a unanimous judgment of the court. The conviction was quashed.

Zimmerman had been placed on suspended sentence of four months by the magistrate. Appeal was against the conviction only.
E. E. Cross appeared for the appellant and J. W. McClung, K.C., represented the crown.

QUASH CONVICTION
The court also quashed the conviction and fine of $50 imposed by Magistrate A. I. Miller, K.C., against Gordon Parsons for selling a truck contrary to dominion regulations.
The court found that Parsons did not come under the regulations in question, having acted as an agent for a person exempted under the regulations.

Other cases were scheduled for hearing Monday afternoon.
Livestock
EDMONTON, Jan. 17.—Total receipts: Cattle 392, calves 54, hogs 154, sheep 127.
There was no undue activity on the cattle market this morning. The bulk of the receipts are late arrivals from the north and will be shown this afternoon in reliable sales up to noon to establish sufficient quotations.

"Bad Girl"

Bette Davis is the number one "bad girl" of Hollywood, and loves it! Not only has she made a career of being a "bad girl", but has proved that the public loves it too. How many times have you heard someone say, "that is a Bette Davis role." Playing the part of the misunderstood and the socially maladjusted has been her trademark ever since her radical decision to play the sordid waitress in "Of Human Bondage." At first it was feared that this part would ruin her career in the movies, but she insisted, and her wisdom has been proven conclusively. Free from affectation, and not given to "fads", Bette is one of the most popular of the stars in Hollywood.

Biggest Nazi Plane Sitting Duck For Allied Fighters

Biggest plane the German Luftwaffe has in service is this gigantic Me-323. But, apart from its vast size, it has proved of little use and is a sitting duck for Allied fighters. It's unloading wounded here.

Loses Diamond

Sunny Ainsworth, divorced seventh wife of Tommy Manville, holds the finger from which a $400 diamond ring was taken during a hold-up in Chicago. Chicago police said Miss Ainsworth also was forced to give up a $750 diamond-studded wrist watch, but retained $400 in cash in her purse.

Palestine W.A.A.F.

This smiling young W.A.A.F. is one of the hundreds of young Jewish girls of Palestine who are members of the British Women's Auxiliary Air Force. Her Hebrew shoulder-flash reads "Eretz-Yisrael," or "Land of Israel," now known as Palestine.

Last to Leave

Chief Machinist's Mate Rene H. Pincetti of San Diego, Calif., was the last man to leave the U.S. destroyer which sank January 3 after an explosion off Sandy Hook. He was in charge of the engine room crew. Fifty are believed dead and more than 100 injured.

Armies Conquer Mud on Every Front

Mud plays no favorites in this world war. The Allies find it wherever they go and Axis armies have the same trouble. In Italy this is a typical road back from the front lines. Travellers are German prisoners captured at Mt. Camino.

The War in Italy Tragic For Civilians, Too

Orphaned by the war, this 10-year-old Italian boy, dressed up in army equipment, is a unit mascot. Here he is despatched on a message by Lieut. Smith.

Out of shelters where they lived during the nine terrible days of the battle for Ortona, residents of the Italian town wend their weary way back to their homes.

Smartest Uniform

Chalk up another score for the Canadian girls in khaki. Of all the women's services in this war, the Canadian Women's Army Corps has the best looking uniform, according to Stars and Stripes, official organ of the U.S. armed forces in the European theatre of war.

Holds Gift Images

Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, wife of the newly-appointed supreme commander of the Allied invasion forces, is shown in her Washington apartment holding miniature images of her son, John, 21, a cadet at West Point, and the general.

Chalked Up Five Enemy Planes

Enemy planes from the remaining Axis countries fell to the marksmanship of the gun crew of this American vessel. Score to date, one Nazi fighter, four two-motored Jap bombers.

Disinherited

Mrs. Madge Wilson of Los Angeles was disinherited by her father because she failed to attend his funeral. She received word that a provision in a will written by her father, Nicholas Zeiger of Mt. Orab, Ohio, cut her off from his estate if she did not attend the funeral. Mrs. Wilson says she had not heard from her father since she was adopted at the age of three.

Battered and Bloody, Ortona Starts Living Again as Fury of Battle in Italy Moves Northward

Homeless children of the Adriatic port of Ortona wander through debris-littered streets of the town after Canadian troops had captured their objective and moved on northward.

Death comes to a Nazi defender. Two Canadian infantrymen, Privates J. Y. Smith, left, of Victoria, B.C., and R. M. Snowden, Vancouver, look at a dead German machine-gunner.

Allied troops make friends with Italian civilians on all fronts. Here U.S. Army Technician William Bourdrean, Bronx, N.Y., holds two-year-old John Baptist Vignola, whom he saved from drowning in a well.

Retreating Nazis in Ortona demolished everything they could, to gain time. Before advancing Canadian tanks they threw up a road block by blasting 1,100-year-old St. Thomas cathedral.

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON—Last night I attended the Netherlands-American foundation dinner in honor of Princess Juliana of The Netherlands. It is always a great pleasure for me to be with this young princess who is so deeply interested in the good of her country. She has already begun making studies of the best ways to handle certain conditions after the war, and is showing foresight in her preparation for her return to Holland.

Someone has just sent me a clipping from a newspaper in which the question is asked: "Why are the Indian people allowed to starve?" They have asked that I answer this question in my column.

It seems to me that everybody must realize what has happened in India. A great deal of food used in the section where starvation has occurred came in the old days from Burma, and that source of supply is cut off. At best there was never too much food. Now they cannot raise enough food for their own needs, and shipping is not available to import it.

I gather that Great Britain is doing much at present to remedy the situation as far as it can be remedied, but I doubt whether the Indian people were ever well-fed according to our standards. This is probably due to the fact that most people have not been much interested in what happened to the people of India. Perhaps when the war is over, we will realize how much closer together we all are and will take greater interest in the economic condition of people throughout the world.

I have had a type of military honor-roll which is being used in New Haven, Conn., by some of the churches drawn to my attention. It is suggested that the churches print and mail to their parishioners in the service, a list of all their fellow members with their service addresses. If a man in the service finds himself in a place where his list tells him some of his fellow parishioners are stationed, he can look them up and they can reminisce about their home surroundings. This is a good idea which might be copied in various parts of our country.

The other day I received a cable from Great Britain which I think the women of this country will be pleased to read. It reads: "Once again British and Allied women celebrating International Women's day to affirm resolve together that all free women achieve speedily final defeat Hitler. Determination, participation, reconstruction, send greetings." It was signed by Lady Rachel MacRobert, international women's day committee, Abbey House, Victoria, London.

We are glad to know that women of many nationalities are meeting together to celebrate an international day to help speed victory and to help in reconstructing a world in which peace may be achieved.

McCoy Health Service

Yes, the inferiority complex can be overcome. If you have an inferiority complex, do something about it. You can lose your sense of inferiority and find out that you have all the powers you need. It may take several weeks of effort to build up your self-confidence, but the patient with the ordinary case of inferiority complex can do a great deal toward overcoming his mental twist and even extreme cases yield to treatment although expert help may be required at the start.

Here are some of the things for you to do in building up a healthy self-confidence: Begin now to build up your own powers by doing. Action is your best medicine. You must create new habits to take the place of those which have limited and stopped you. Each time that you notice a feeling of inferiority, replace it with a thought of confidence. Use positive pictures and see yourself as actually doing those things which you want to do. Say to yourself many times each day, "I am self-confident." Every time you meet a person you are to think to yourself, "What kind thing can I do for you?" The day will come when you find you have the same power as anyone else. Keep on using your powers in a way that will do you good.

Remember that each time that you use your emotional power in a way that is good, you weaken the old habit of inferiority which was not good. You grow more confident day by day and the more you practise the habit of replacing a feeling of inferiority with feeling of confidence, the more rapidly you will recover. You will then plunge through the fences of shyness, embarrassment, and fear as though they were tissue paper.

After you regain a feeling of self-confidence, you will learn to place a true value on yourself. Remember to a large extent you set your own value on yourself and the person with the inferiority complex has "marked down" his worth. He holds himself too cheaply.

He will profit by learning from the storekeeper who had on hand a load of good women's aprons actually worth a dollar. To try to clear them out in a hurry, he marked them down to 49c. He watched one woman after another pick up an apron and lay it down because at that price she thought it too cheap to be reliable merchandise. He then marked the aprons up to 98c which was almost their full value and sold them out before noon. Purchasers were eager to buy them because they thought if they sold at 98c they must be good. You must do likewise and learn to mark yourself up where you are now marking yourself down.

I strongly urge that you try my suggestions. Say to yourself "I am self-confident", and back up the words with constructive acts of kindness and helpfulness. I promise you that within the short space of one month you will improve in a way that will pleasantly surprise you.

Inferiority is only a feeling of weakness and this feeling can be replaced with the feeling that confidence is yours.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

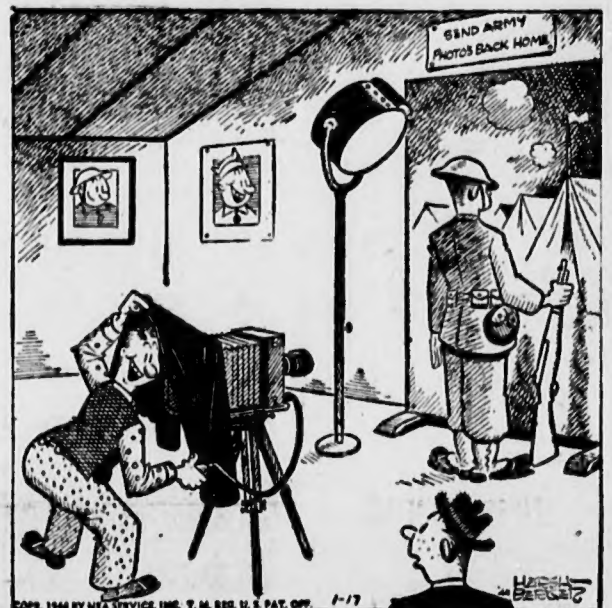

BLACKOUTS 400 YEARS AGO

Thieves Take Office Safe Of Auto Firm

Three Edmonton business places were entered over the week-end, according to city police, while an attempt was made to enter a fourth place. Thefts ranged from a safe of one concern, to a small amount of currency in another, it was learned.

Removing two windows from the office of Lyons Motors, 10141 102 street, sometime Saturday night, thieves entered the building and wheeled the unlocked safe across the office floor, through a repair shop to a rear door and carted it away.

Notified by Arthur Flemming, bookkeeper, of 10160 101 street, police discovered that the small vault contained a ledger, cheque book, receipt book, notes against autos sold by the concern, employees unemployment insurance books and an insurance policy in Mr. Flemming's own name. No cash was in the safe.

After breaking a pane of glass in a back door of Young's meat market, 10133 124 street, Saturday night, thieves put their arms through the hole and released two bolts on the inside.

REGISTER RIFLED

Investigations showed that the cash register had been rifled, and some American coins and Canadian coppers had been taken. The thieves apparently left the premises by the front door.

William Young, proprietor of the market, said that he had placed the day's cash receipts in another portion of the store. These were found intact.

Third establishment to be forcibly entered was that of the Beaver Lumber Company, 10160 109 street.

SMASH DOOR

Thieves entered the building after smashing a glass in a door leading to the office, and then unlocked it from the inside. While no safe was kept on the premises, the place did not appear to have been ransacked, although the sound board from the cash register was removed and left sitting on a counter. An empty milk bottle had been taken from the hallway in the building, and was found on the counter.

UNSUCCESSFUL

An unsuccessful attempt to enter the Edmonton Motors, 111 avenue and 97 street branch, sometime Friday night, was found by police. A portion of a panel in a large door had been whittled away, and a hole, almost large enough to put a hand through, was made. Apparently the culprit had then attempted to raise the bottom half of a window on the north side of the building. The window frame bore the scars of some tool which had been used unsuccessfully, to force it up.

Milder Weather To Continue Here

Mild spring-like weather prevailed in Edmonton over the week-end. Except for a trace of snow which fell between 10:26 and 10:35 p.m. Saturday, the weather remained generally fair. The balmy atmosphere brought citizens out-of-doors and parks were crowded with skaters, skiers and sleigh-riding parties. Sunday morning fog was reported in various sections of the city. This was not general, however, and disappeared quickly.

Maximum temperature registered Sunday was 32 degrees, and the overnight low was 13 above. At 8:30 a.m. Monday, the temperature still was 13 degrees. Mild weather will continue, according to the weather forecast, which is "partly cloudy and continuing mild."

Before the Magistrate

Eva Andrusiw of Waugh, pleaded guilty to two charges of theft before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in city police court Monday morning and was remanded in custody until Jan. 25.

An Edmonton departmental store detective told the court he watched the accused while she was in the store Saturday, following her from the main floor to the second. He watched her as she placed a number of articles in a handbag, and arrested her as she left the store.

John Armitage, also charged with theft, and from the same store, pleaded guilty to the count, and was remanded for a day while a check was made. Everybody, said the accused, made mistakes at times. Armitage, the court was told, was observed helping himself to some articles in the store, Saturday afternoon. Some further articles, which he admitted stealing from the same store during the week, were recovered from a second-hand store, where he had sold them.

Case of breach of the School Act, against Mrs. W. Roth, was adjourned for three weeks.

Charged with being the parent of two children of school age and neglecting to cause them to attend school regularly, the accused entered a plea of guilty.

A school officer told the court that upon inquiring why the children were not attending school, he was informed that the oldest, a boy of 14 years, was working.

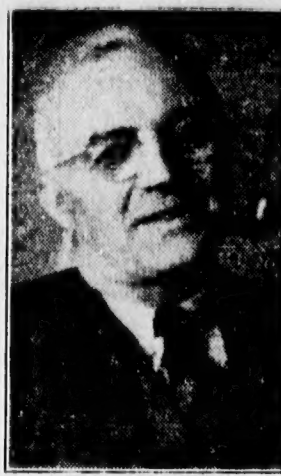

The accused had been warned to send the children to school, but information from the school was to the effect that they still did not attend regularly.

The magistrate said it would be easy for her to find out if the boys were attending school, by reading the report card.

Legion Seeks Full Pay For Returned Men

until his condition improves and should be kept on full pay and allowances while undergoing treatment, the secretary-manager said.

In the case of the captain, he had been removed from his private room as soon as informed of his discharge. The officer was twice wounded and is still anxious to return to active service when his wounds heal, as he is confident they will, under continued treatment.

On the discharge papers of the private it is stated he served in Canada and the United Kingdom. No mention is made of his service in Sicily or of his wounds. Reason for discharge is given as: "Unable to meet the required military physical standards."

A member urged that "full publicity be given these cases in the newspapers."

A letter from staff headquarters of M.D. 13 admitted that mistakes have been made in filling out discharge certificates of two Edmonton soldiers, which had drawn previous protests from the Edmonton Legion branch and there was the promise that such mistakes would not be repeated.

NO CLOTHING ALLOWANCE

Case of a soldier who served four years with The Royal Edmonton Regiment, who received no clothing allowance when discharged, was cited.

The soldier received his discharge on compassionate grounds at his own request. For this reason, military authority contend, he is not entitled to the $65 clothing allowance to servicemen discharged for other reasons.

A short resume was given of the case of a returned veteran paying $50 a month rent for a house that Legion officials state is worth about $15 or $20 per month. The veteran draws a pension of $85 a month and had taken the house because he could secure no other place to live.

"I had a talk with the landlord after he had threatened to remove the stove in the house and he argued that if other persons could get $30 a month for a single room he thought $50 a month for the house was not unreasonable," Mr. Williams said.

"After all that landlord's attitude is only natural after so many have made a racket of this rent business," he added.

The case has been appealed to rental authorities at Ottawa.

"There are decent landlords. I have one myself and there are many more. No one should get the idea we are defending soldiers' wives who do not play the game," Mr. Williams said.

"SUGGESTS" PAYMENT

He then read a copy of a letter he had sent to the wife of a soldier drawing $115 per month who was in arrears with her house rent. The letter suggested the rent be paid up.

"If dependents don't conduct themselves properly we are not going to fight for them. We are only interested in ending this racket," he said.

The Legion had paid costs of $45 incurred by the wife of a veteran involved in eviction proceedings, it was disclosed. The matter of costs in the case had been taken up with the attorney general's department and a letter of censure sent to the legal representatives concerned, the official stated.

"Now I hear there is to be a meeting of certain legal gentlemen tomorrow at which all of our charges will be refuted. I have not been making any wilding, but am perfectly willing to repeat what I said previously. I have not been making any wild statements. All of the facts have been obtained before statements have been made," Mr. Williams declared amid applause.

Mr. Quelch declared the Legion is leading the way in the fight for greater security.

Himself a veteran of the First Great War, the New Democracy member of the Dominion parliament for Acadia, promised to personally bring the grievances mentioned to the attention of the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of pensions and national health before taking the subject up on the floor of the house.

FEARFUL OF FUTURE

"All over Canada people are fearful of what is to come, remembering the depression before the war," Mr. Quelch said.

"When great projects had been suggested before the war the government had replied there was no money for them. The national income of Canada is now about $8,000,000,000, enough to provide $3,000 per year for all Canadian families of four, he declared."

Mrs. Nancy Melnyk Is Dead in the City

Mrs. Nancy Melnyk, of 10455 98 street died suddenly on Sunday while being admitted to hospital.

She was 62 years old.

Mrs. Melnyk is survived by her husband, three sons, Mike of Bon Accord, Peter of Edmonton and Sam of Waugh, and two daughters, Mrs. Mike Shulba of Moon Lake and Mrs. Harry Drzyk of Legal.

A funeral service will be held Tuesday, Jan. 18 at 9 a.m. from St. Joseph's church. The Rev. Father Kamenski O.S.B.M. will officiate. Burial will be in the Edmonton Roman Catholic cemetery.

Legion Elects Officers For Another Term

Edmonton Branch No. 24 of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will be officered largely by the same leaders heading the branch last year, voting for officers for 1944 at the annual meeting Sunday afternoon in the Memorial hall revealed.

J. C. Macdonald, a veteran of the present war, was returned to the office of first vice-president, with J. McLean also being returned as second vice-president for another term.

EXECUTIVE MEMBERS

The executive will be made up of the following who served in 1943: G. C. Scott, M.M., P. Cowley, S. Bowcott, A. Riddell, W. A. Irwin, and W. R. McLaren, M.M.

In addition, Percy Gwynne, E. Booth and W. Daniels, will serve on the executive during the coming Legion year.

Gwynne has been active in Legion affairs for some years, being chairman of the rehabilitation committee of the Legion branch.

Booth and Daniels are new veterans, who along with First Vice-president Macdonald, will form the representation of new veterans on the executive as provided by a recent amendment to the branch constitution.

President H. E. Tanner will again head the board of officers, having received an acclamation to that post at the last general meeting.

There were two candidates for the office of first vice-president and four for that of second vice-president, and 22 for executive posts.

RETURNING OFFICER

Maj. R. C. Arthurs, M.C., served as chief returning officer.

Members of the board of officers will be installed at a special meeting and at home in the Memorial Hall Monday evening starting at 8 o'clock.

Memorial Service For City Soldier

The Rev. J. T. Stephens, superintendent of All People's Mission, with which Cpl. Lester McAr, The Royal Edmonton Regiment, was identified from childhood, paid a very touching tribute to his memory on Sunday evening at a crowded service at Buchanan church. He placed him amongst that great company of young heroic souls who, abate with an unquenchable love of freedom, fought and are fighting to suppress aggressors. Such was Orton! His name will live because such names are never born to die.

Many young persons, his former friends, were present to pay their tribute of respect. The hymns, "Spirit of God Descend Upon My Heart," "Come Ye Disconsolate," "The Lord Is My Shepherd," and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go" were sung. Mrs. E. R. Dove, whose own four sons are in uniform, sang "The Old Rugged Cross," a very touching tribute to his memory.

A bouquet decorated the altar, and the whole service was comforting in its simplicity and quiet beauty.

The immediate members of the family were present, Pte. J. McAr, his father, being granted special leave from the Veterans' Guard at Lebridge to attend. Also present was the corporal of Lester McAr's company overseas, who recently returned to Canada.

C.P.R. Freighter Fought Nazi Ship

Three years ago the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay made its name immortal through its gallant self-sacrificing fight against a German pocket battleship in the Atlantic.

The action in going into the attack to protect the convoy out-gunned, out-matched in every way save valor won the Victoria Cross (awarded after death) for Captain Fogarty Fegen, the captain of the ship.

The name of another ship that carried on the fight after the Jervis Bay had been sunk has been revealed, the Canadian Pacific Steamships' freighter, Beaverford. Lightly armed as was the Beaverford it held the enemy fire for five hours enabling the other slower ships in the convoy to get away in the darkness. Captain Hugh Pettigrew, and every man on board went down with the ship after a magnificent fight. Out of about 38 ships in that convoy only four were lost.
